2 IRISH BOMBERS HANGED

Police Ring Prison During Execution

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Feb. 7 (INS)—Peter Barnes and James Richards, youthful members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, paid the extreme penalty today for their part on the bomb explosions last August at Coventry which killed five persons.

FRENCH EXECUTE NAZI SPY

NANCY, France, Feb. 7 (AP)—Dr. Karl Roos, 60-year-old Alsatian autonomy leader, convicted of espionage for Germany, was executed at dawn today by a firing squad. President Albert Lebrun had refused his plea for clemency.

At the time of his trial, French newspapers published pictures of the heavy-set Roos in a Nazi uniform. Such a photograph was reported to have been found in his home. He was arrested Feb. 7, 1939, almost seven months before the war with Germany started.

He was accused of having furnished information to German agents on the movements of French troops in March, 1936, when Germany recaptured the Rhineland and in September, 1938, during the crisis over Germany's claim to the Czechoslovak Sudetenland.

In announcing the conviction last October, French authorities said it had nothing to do with Roos' activities on behalf of the Alsatian autonomy movement in a region strategically adjacent to Germany.

300 Japs Die as Chinese Sink Ship

HONGKONG, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Central News Agency, the central Chinese government's press service, reported today 300 men were killed yesterday when Chinese artillery sank a Japanese transport in the Yangtze river 30 miles above Kiangling.

ALLIES, NAZIS SHIFT WAR'S SPOTLIGHT TO FINN FRONT

The Finnish-Russian war was uppermost today in the capitals of three other warring powers—Germany, France and Britain.

In Berlin authorized sources said Germany has no commitments to extend military or technical aid to Russia against Finland and that there is no Russian-Germany military pact whatever.

A movement to send full aid to Finland reached steamroller proportions in Paris as the authoritative newspaper Le Temps came out in favor of "effective, complete and total" assistance to the Finns.

The newspaper's voice was raised shortly after French Radical-Socialist party urged the government to send speedy aid to Finland.

Britain is already sending planes with the understanding that fighters are available in Finland to pilot them, the House of Commons was told by Undersecretary R. A. Butler.

Nazis Deny Aiding Reds in Finn War

BERLIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—Germany

The two Irishmen were hanged at 9 a. m. (4 a. m. EST) after moves by the Eire government to gain them a reprieve failed.

As the executions took place, precautions to guard the lives of British cabinet members were redoubled.

The executions passed off quietly as the clock chimed 9 o'clock. A crowd of about 100 persons, most of them Irishmen, stood in police-cordoned side streets near the prison and bared their heads as the clock tolled the hour.

At 9:07 a. m. a notice on the prison gate confirmed that the two men had been hanged simultaneously.

As the hour for the executions approached, police intensified their precautions near the prison, moving back a crowd which had been gathering since dawn at the prison gates. Traffic was diverted away from the prison.

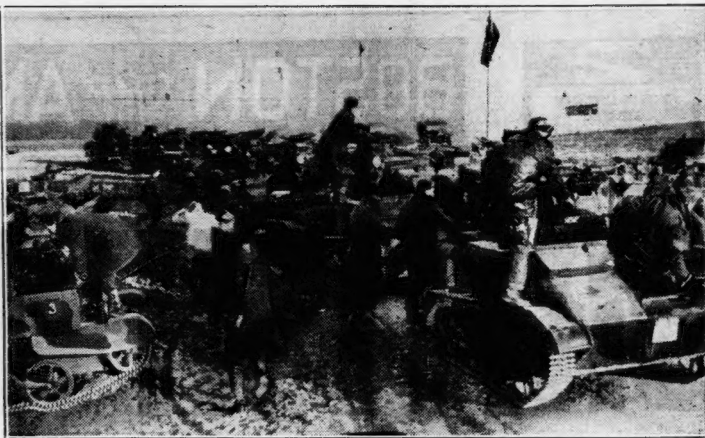

Later the crowds, closely supervised by police, were permitted to file past the gates and see the executioner, which were placed in a black frame.

It was revealed that the two men were hanged together on gallows erected side by side. At the inquest following the execution, a verdict of death due to judicial hanging was returned. A physician certified that death was instantaneous.

Mobilized armed police formed a double ring around Winsor Prison, where the executions were carried out, to prevent possible last-minute attempts to free Barnes and Richards.

Likewise, in London, British cabinet ministers were kept under a close guard following yesterday's renewed bomb outrages in London, Birmingham and Manchester, in

Finns Beat Back 6 More Red Attacks

By PETER DE HEMMER GUDME

International News Service Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, Feb. 7—Six more attacks on Finland's Mannerheim line, with the Russians throwing every form of winter fighting equipment into the fray, were beaten off today, according to official Finnish announcement.

In fighting on other fronts in the last few days 1800 more Russians were killed, said the communiques. Although unable to crack the Mannerheim line after a ceaseless assault, now in its eighth day, the Russians hurled wave after wave of troops against the fortifications on the Karelian Isthmus, unleashing one swarm of troops the moment the previous one was repelled.

"Continued attacks between Halahidenjervi and Summa, on the Karelian Isthmus, failed," the bulletin said.

SCATTER SKI BATTALION

"Four tank attacks were repulsed. Attempts to transport infantry in armored sledges pulled by tanks failed. Twenty tanks were destroyed or put out of action. The enemy was twice repulsed at Pannusjoki.

"An enemy skidding battalion was completely scattered on the eastern front. Three hundred were killed and two tanks destroyed. Fighting continues in the direction of Kuhmo, where 1500 enemy soldiers have been killed in the 6-day battle.

"Six enemy airplanes and a barrage balloon were shot down. Enemy aerial activity was confined to raids on a few front lines. There were no bombing attacks worthy of mention."

HEAVY FIGHTING

The attacks on the Mannerheim line produced some of the heaviest fighting of the conflict.

Military authorities in Helsinki claimed that the Soviet attacks, supported by bombing planes and terrific artillery barrages, were being thrown back by the Finns. They said the Russians were keeping up assaults day and night in the hope of exhausting the defenders.

(An official Soviet communique issued in Moscow made no mention of the fighting on the Mannerheim line in the Karelian Isthmus. It merely stated that there were "encounters between small infantry detachments north of Lake Ladoga" and that Russian planes carried out reconnaissance flights.)

The fighting for possession of the Finnish-held village of Summa raged along a 10-mile front as the Soviets pounded the sector from two directions, supported by 150 tanks.

JAPS PLAN TO ACT ON OPEN DOOR

TOKYO, Feb. 7 (AP)—Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told Parliament today that the government is "weighing the advantages and disadvantages of abrogation" of the nine-power treaty of 1922 concerning China.

"Some of its provisions obviously are incongruous," Arita said of the pact which pledged Japan, the United States and six other powers to respect the integrity of China and the policy of the "open door" in trade with that country.

Other government spokesmen said Japan is preparing for "anticipated difficulties" in economic relations with the United States now that their 25-year-old trade treaty has been ended by the United States' denunciation.

One official speaker referred to "preparations for the worst."

Arita declared that "at present the government is not considering strengthening the anti-Comintern pact" which linked Tokyo with Berlin and Rome against communism.

Parliament was told there are no negotiations under way for a modus vivendi—working agreement—to govern trade relations with the United States in the absence of a treaty, and "judging by the present situation it will be difficult to conclude a trade agreement."

Lewisohn's Ex-Love Starts Court Fight

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The mother of Ludwig Lewisohn's six-year-old son tearfully turned toward the law today after she had crashed a wedding ceremony in Baltimore in a futile attempt to block the author's marriage to the "other woman."

MADCAP MERRY HOPES HER NO. 5 WON'T BE BROKE

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The next time Merry Fahrney marries she's going to marry a man with money, "enough to take care of himself and preferably enough to take care of me."

"Someone I can have fun with, who is intelligent and amusing and that I can TRUST. And I want it to last," added the 23-year-old patent medicine heiress whose fourth marriage has just ended in divorce.

"I have a hunch," she said, "that I may marry an American. But if I really fell in love with another foreigner I suppose I would marry him."

"For I still believe in love—I guess every woman does until she dies."

She wants her next husband to be fairly prosperous because "I think men that take care of women are much happier and women have a greater respect for them."

WANTS RICH HUBBY

"I don't want it to be so that I have to buy his clothes and give him money when he goes out. That's annoying."

This is a point on which she's at made up her mind. It didn't figure in her first marriage to Hugh Parker Pickering, who had an income. The trouble with that was that she was too young, she said. She was 17, "and if you're married too young, it hasn't a chance to last."

Her second marriage, to Frank Van Sands Elmer, was annulled. Her third, to Baron Arturo Berlinieri of Italy, ended in divorce. Her fourth was to Count Oleg Cassini, Russian dress designer. All but the first were elopements.

Disillusioned? "No," she said, "I'm not pessimistic by nature."

Happy? "Not especially. I guess I expect too much. I don't know exactly what I want to happen. I suppose if I knew I'd be happy."

Bored? She reflected a minute, and then nodded. "A little, sometimes. You have to have a terrific interest not to be bored. I hate cocktail parties. I loathe going to dinners. I don't want to work, because it's so hard to get up early."

(She did work once for three weeks, as a Hollywood extra.) What she really had hoped for, it simmered down to, was a happy marriage.

She looked rather disconsolately around the drawing-room of her suite, with its grate fire, two vases of red roses, four vases of white tulips.

"I hate to be called 'Madcap,'" she added. "I'm not a madcap. I don't drink anything but wine, and I don't rush around a lot. I guess I just got married."

Thelma Spear, 42, who proclaimed herself the "wife, muse and soul" of the 38-year-old writer, sought a warrant for his arrest, declaring illegal his marriage to Edna Manley, 32, former Rochester, N. Y., newspaperwoman.

Instructed by the state's attorney's office in Baltimore to stand by in New York for the prosecutor's decision on the warrant, Miss Spear checked out of the Baltimore hotel, where she had been registered as "Mrs. Lewisohn" and entrained for Manhattan.

Meanwhile, the first Mrs. Lewisohn, the former Mary Arnold Crocker, who tiffed with the author in divorce court for 13 years, said she gave him a divorce in 1937 "so that he could marry Thelma" and declared today she sympathizes with Miss Spear.

A playwright herself under the name of Bosworth Crocker, she was 19 years older than he at the time of their marriage in 1906.

COLLECTS $100 A MONTH

She said she is collecting $100 a month for life from his publishers, provided in the settlement of a suit in which she charged he had libeled her in "Mid-Channel," a semi-autobiographical book.

While Lewisohn and his attractive bride headed for their honeymoon in a Riverside Drive, N. Y., apartment, Miss Spear burst into tears as she told her story before she departed from Baltimore.

Desperation drove her, she said, to make her dramatic appearance in the study of Harsanyi Temple, where she fell at the feet of Rabbi Edward L. Israel and cried out just as he was about to unite the couple.

"This wedding must not take place. I have been his wife, his muse, his soul," she sobbed.

Her son, Jimmy, whose paternity Lewisohn has acknowledged, was at her side.

"He (Lewisohn) had the best of me and now he doesn't want to pay the bill," she sobbed.

"All I want now is for him to marry me for Jimmy's sake and pay off a $9000 mortgage on my home in Burlington, Vt. He can divorce me then. I won't stand in his way."

"GOING TO GET MY BOY"

Equally determined was the gray-haired author, who declared:

"I am going to get back my boy."

His son, he added, had been given into his custody last summer "by a friendly, mutual agreement."

"Thelma and I had many beautiful years together, but separated last October and it's all over now."

CAROL ANN PIKE

Prays for Recovery of Sister, Glioma Victim

Glioma Baby's Eye Will Be Removed

Surgical science prepared to take little Mary Ellen Pike's left eye today as the only hope of saving her life.

Victim of glioma, rare and deadly eye infection, the seven-months-old infant was at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary—where surgeons made the grim decision.

Courtesy Pays—Even in Holdups

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—The mistake a holdup man made when he entered a Times Square candy shop last night was "pushing around" Cecelia Ritchie and Clare Kranehelf, both 23.

"When he started pushing us around," Miss Ritchie said, "I grabbed for his pistol and snatched it from him, then Clare screamed for help until police came and arrested him."

Police said the pistol was a toy one.

Unhesitatingly, Mary Ellen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Pike of Mulberry st., Brockton, sanctioned the surgery when doctors informed them it was a case of life with only one eye—or almost certain death with two.

The operation, surgeons said, would be the only means of preventing the infection from spreading to the brain.

The operation was scheduled for yesterday but the little victim, developed a cold with considerable fever and surgeons decided to postpone the operation until the fever subsided.

The presence of the dread glioma condition in the infant's left eye was first discovered by Dr. Edward E. Jones of the Brockton Hospital, where the infant recently recovered from an attack of pneumonia.

On the day Mary Ellen was scheduled to leave the hospital, Dr. Jones conferred with her parents, advising them to take her directly to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary for a confirming diagnosis.

Mary Ellen is the youngest of six children and except for the disease which now threatens her life is a healthy and fully developed infant, according to the doctors.

Chubby Carol Ann Pike, three-year-old sister of Mary Ellen, anxiously awaits her baby sister's recovery.

Last victim of glioma to be recorded locally was 18-months-old James Maloof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Maloof, of Oak st., South End, whose right eye was removed at the City hospital in October, 1933.

COMMUNITY FUND ALL-TIME HIGH BRINGS CHEER TO HUB

Good citizens of Greater Boston today enjoyed the heartfelt thanks of their needy, ill and less fortunate neighbors—keeping true a New England tradition that private charities will see and do their duty.

For the 1940 Community Fund struck an all-time high of $4,647,652.06 in 15 short days, meeting its quota for the first time since 1937. The goal was a $4,625,000, oversubscribed in 15 days.

Better business conditions may have played some part but officials of the Fund were unanimous today in sweeping full and deserving credit on 16,000 volunteer workers who labored day and night in the closing hours of the drive.

Announcement that the goal was reached and over-subscribed came at the Victory dinner at the Hotel Statler, where tired workers staged such a demonstration as the charity campaign never has witnessed.

Francis C. Gray, general chairman of the campaign, and Mayor Tobin did a war dance at the head table.

SOUTH BOSTON FIRST
Major credit for the amazing success of the campaign was given to Chairman Gray, who served as toastmaster at the dinner.

Full credit, he declared, was due to 16,000 volunteer workers whose desperate final-day efforts were responsible for the surge which carried the total sum far above the set goal.

Charles Francis Adams, himself an active campaign worker, in his dinner address declared:

"This is the greatest campaign ever conducted. You have done something for the city. You have done infinite good for the agencies and the people who are helped by these agencies. I thank you from the bottom of my heart on behalf of the underprivileged."

PRaise FOR CITY WORKERS
Mayor Tobin also complimented the workers and singled out the city employee for praise because of their generous contributions.

South Boston led the districts division with a percentage of 169.9. William L. Baxter was chairman of the division.

Subscriptions of more than $1000 from individuals announced today were:

$2500—Hon. and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller.
$4000—Anonymous.
$2575—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gold.
$1800—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fenn.
$1623—Christian Science committee, additional (Total to date $4724).

Hub Shipping Tangled by Fog

Heavy fog all along the New England coast delayed shipping today.

The St. John, of the Eastern Steamship Line, carrying passengers from New York, dropped anchor off Negro Ledge, Buzzards Bay. The Merchants and Miners liners Juniata and Nantucket were anchored near her. The Mormacrio, from South American ports, was lying off Boston lightship waiting for the fog to lift before attempting the trip into Boston harbor.

Heavy ice was breaking up along the shores of Massachusetts Bay. Pack ice was still heavy in Buzzards Bay, but a five-mile ice ring around Nantucket was slowly moving off.

Light rain and heavy fog were reported along the Atlantic coast, but the weather man promised clearing by tomorrow.

Natick Fire Victim's Condition Critical

NATICK, Feb. 7.—William Karb, 77, of Water st., was in critical condition at Leonard Morse Hospital today after being saved from a flaming death by Patrolman George B. Scott.

Karb was burning brush in his yard when the flames ignited his clothing. His cries attracted the policeman, who whipped of his service overcoat, wrapped the victim in it and extinguished the flames.

First degree murder charges will be filed against Slater and accessory charges will be lodged against the widow, Mrs. Minnie Jenkins, 50, and her son, Merin, 18, the prosecutor declared.

Smith asserted that young Slater and Mrs. Jenkins had been "carrying on an affair."

The body of Jenkins, a railroad telegrapher, was found near Dayton Saturday night. He had been bludgeoned to death and his body dumped beside a highway.

Slater and Merin Jenkins attended Miami University together last fall, leaving after one semester. Since then Slater has roomed in the Jenkins home at Huntsville, near Bellefontaine.

According to the prosecutor, the youth confessed that he obtained a hammer from a restaurant operated by Mrs. Jenkins, then went to the residence and struck the husband on the head while he was asleep.

Leading the body into a car, Slater drove 75 miles to a point near Miamisburg in the vicinity of Dayton and left it beside the road.

The deer, Smith charged, was done with the "full knowledge" of Mrs. Jenkins and her son, Merin.

Browder Badly Beaten in Race

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—M. Michael Edelstein, a Tammany Democrat, overwhelmingly defeated his Republican and Communist opponents yesterday in a special election for Congress and termed his victory "a triumph for President Roosevelt and his policies."

His vote in the Lower Manhattan district for the office vacated by the death of Rep. William I. Sirovich was 12,962 against 6,665 for Municipal Court Justice Louis J. Leikowitz, Republican, and 3,011 for Earl Browder, American Communist leader.

Browder had said he didn't want to go to Washington anyway—that Federal Judge John C. Knox had "suggested" he go to Atlanta Penitentiary for four years, and "so far as the company is concerned I think it would be just about as good there as in Washington."

Browder was convicted Jan. 22 of passport fraud. He did not vote yesterday because, although his office is in the district, his home is in suburban Yonkers, and because his conviction deprived him of the franchise.

ARMY FLIERS RECOVERING AFTER PLUNGE INTO OCEAN

Lieut. Arthur E. Tappan, 27, army reserve pilot, and his army mechanic, Private W. R. Andrews, 23, were reported in "excellent" condition at Cohasset Hospital today following an airplane crash and rescue from the sea off Twin Rocks, Scituate.

Ice on the wings of their army monoplane forced them down until they crashed into slush and ice cakes almost a half mile from shore.

Both men swam and pushed themselves over the slush ice until they reached rocks some distance from shore, from where rescuers carried them to the beach.

Army officials and Coast Guardsmen announced an attempt will be made to salvage the ship today.

FLIER WHEN HE WAS 18

Tappan, an army reserve officer, has had a transport pilot's license since he was 18. He was the first pilot of his age to receive such a license at East Boston airport. He lives in Byfield st., Waban, with his wife, Andrews, who lives in Pratt st., Revere, is a mechanic at the Boston airport army corps hangar Arnold Beach, operator at the World Wide radio station, and Ben Peckham waded out in the slush ice to meet the airmen. The latter encountered Andrews, close to collapse. Peckham picked him up and carried him in. Paul Vantagoli of Plymouth headed for the rock in water to his armpits and carried Tappan to safety.

Capt. Sumner Corbett of the First Cliffs Coast Guard station, Scituate and his crew including John Gaspie, Jr., and H. M. Litchfield, gave first aid and the fliers were taken to Cohasset hospital where they were attended by Dr. Clifford Ward of Scituate and P. J. Reardon of Cohasset.

Governor Names 1940 Fair Board

Gov. Saltonstall today appointed a five-man commission to consider the advisability of Massachusetts' participation this year in the New York World's Fair, in conjunction with other New England states.

Named to the commission were Sen. Angier L. Goodwin, Melrose, chairman; Rep. Rudolph F. King, Mills, as vice-chairman; Patrick J. Duane, former mayor of Waltham; John J. O'Connell, Pittsfield, and Atty. Stedman Miller, Lynn.

Goodwin, chairman of the commission in charge of the Massachusetts exhibit last year, reported it had proved "highly successful," and that more than 3,000,000 fair visitors had inspected it.

Two observers from the office of Henry F. Long, State tax commissioner, today began checking federal records in connection with the indictments against five stockholders in the Revere dog track, charged with making fraudulent income tax returns to the government.

NAB 3D R.I. SLAYING SUSPECT

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 7.—Rhode Island state police today picked up a third suspect in the "ride" slaying of John J. Kennedy, Pawtucket bookmaker and gambler. Although the officials have refused to reveal the identity of any of the trio, one is understood to be a well-known Providence character, a strong-arm man who numbers among his activities the collecting of bets from welshers and the breaking-up of labor troubles.

He is listed by authorities as one of Rhode Island's "Public Enemies." Capt. Daniel O'Brien, in charge of the Kennedy slaying probe, said today that it has not been decided yet whether to prefer formal charges against any of the three suspects held.

Asked if the roundup was a result of information furnished by Kennedy's widow, who was about to start home from a Florida vacation when her husband's blood-stained car was found last Saturday, Capt. O'Brien replied:

"Well, it helped a little." Meanwhile, Pawtucket police continued to deny that any suspects had been picked up.

Coincidentally with the State's sudden activity and interest in these tax returns made to the State, it was learned that four other heavy stockholders, not mentioned in the federal investigation, are now under scrutiny.

Tax returns by stockholders in all three dog tracks in the State are being examined by Long's investigators on orders from Governor Saltonstall.

It was learned today that Long's observers brought the cases of Charles H. McGuire and Edmund L. Doland before the commissioner and affected settlements on income tax return discrepancies.

For the past five years, it was revealed, Long's men have been checking returns from all stockholders connected with Massachusetts racing, including "straw" stock owners whose identity have never been made public.

As the state expedited its checkup on their local tax returns Martin Hays, former legislator and Republican front leader and four others prepared to appear in federal court tomorrow morning.

The others facing a charge of fraudulent income tax returns tomorrow are: Louis Fox, Revere sportsman; Mario Ingrassia, formerly of East Boston, well known in sporting circles; Hyman Abrams, of Chelsea long time associate of Fox and Arthur G. Barron, of Allston, another stockholder in the Revere greyhound emporium.

Timilty Upheld In Tax Fight

Judge Thomas J. Hammond, in Superior Court today, sustained a demurrer filed by Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty to the petition for certiorari filed against him by two independent taxicab owners.

The judge, in upholding the demurrer, found, in effect, that the police head was within his power in setting up the stagger system for Boston taxicabs.

Through the petition for certiorari, the taxicab owners asked the court to rule that Timilty had no power to set up the system, under which each Boston taxicab must be withdrawn from the streets on one day of the week, from Monday and Friday, inclusive.

Today, when word was received that Miss Dinmore had improved, the trip was called off and Mrs. Astor cancelled her American Airlines reservation to Boston.

She had intended, in Boston, to charter an Inter-City Airlines plane for the trip to Edgartown.

LENTEN SERVICES OPENED

Churches of Greater Boston opened the Lenten season today with special Ash Wednesday services, attended by record throngs.

Most elaborate observances were in Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches, but an increasing number of non-liturgical churches joined in the traditional beginning of the 40-day period which will end on East Sunday, March 24.

Faithful Catholics flocked to early Lenten masses throughout the metropolitan area.

DISTRIBUTE ASHES

In all churches of the archdiocese ashes were distributed after the mass at which they were blessed. They are to be distributed again at 4 p. m. and at evening services tonight.

At the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, a solemn high mass was celebrated at 9 o'clock by the Rev. William B. Foley, with the Rev. Edward Moran as deacon; the Rev. Michael P. Costello as sub-deacon, and the Rev. Henry J. O'Connell as master of ceremonies.

St. Peter and Paul Church announced a daily mass will be said at 12:20 p. m. during Lent.

HOLD COMMUNION

Three Communion services were held today at St. Paul's Cathedral (Episcopal), followed by a special penitential office by Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill. Vespers were scheduled at 5:30 p. m., and an address by Dean John M. McGann of Springfield at 8 p. m.

The Ash Wednesday observance at Trinity Church began with an 8 a. m. Communion service. Morning prayer, litany and penitential office followed at 11 a. m., with the Rev. Robert McConnell Hatch in charge. The rector, Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, preached a Lenten sermon at 12:10 p. m.

Other services and sermons were scheduled at 2:15 p. m. and 8 p. m. Emmanuel Church, the Church of St. John the Evangelist and the Church of the Advent also held special Lenten services.

PLAN JOINT SERVICE

Unitarian churches of Boston and New England held mid-week services based on a special Lenten manual compiled by the Rev. Herbert Jochen of the Unitarian Church in West Newton.

First of a series of Lenten classes will begin tonight at Old South Church, with Mt. Vernon and Union Church groups participating.

Twelve Protestant churches of six denominations will join for the seventh year in two simultaneous Ash Wednesday services in St. Andrew's Methodist Church and the First Methodist Church, Jamaica Plain.

Luise Rainer on Horse To Lead Youth Parade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (AP)—Luise Rainer, the actress, dressed as Joan of Arc and mounted on a white horse, was selected today to lead a parade of the American Youth Congress next Saturday.

The parade for "Joan, peace and civil liberties" will wind up on the White House lawn, where President Roosevelt is scheduled to address the delegates.

Paul C. Pendleton, a grand nephew, from Hartford, Ct., contested the will which left the $400,000 to Frank M. Archer, Jr., of Wellesley. Pendleton charged undue influence.

Atty. Max Cohen and Frank O'Donnell of Lowell, representing Pendleton, introduced evidence to show that Mrs. Young forced her husband to sleep in a garage, while a dog slept with her. Also it was testified that on one occasion she went to Revere Beach and had her maid take the dog for a ride on the merry-go-round.

Mrs. Young died Nov. 19, 1937.

The will which Atty. George F. McKellegat, representing Archer, sought to uphold was dated Dec. 18, 1927. It made Archer the executor and mentioned that Mrs. Young had no heirs-at-law.

Templeton appeared and proved his relationship to the deceased, introducing records of Tewksbury Almshouse to prove that she and Templeton's grandfather, her brother, had once been placed there.

BATTLE RESUMED OVER ADAMS' WILL

Charles E. Adams, aged Boston silk manufacturer and benefactor of Harvard and Tech students, lived his last days in California in a home surrounded by high walls and locked gates.

So it was declared in a deposition as hearing resumed in Suffolk Superior Court today in the suit to void a $1,250,000 trust fund left to students.

The deposition was taken from Raymond M. Thurin of Palm Springs, Cal., who served as guardian for Adams' wife prior to her death in 1938. It was read in court by Atty. Thomas D. Lavelle, counsel for the administrator in the Adams will.

"Did you ever see Mr. Adams dressed in a child's smock?" was one of the questions in the deposition—to which Thurin's answer was "No."

Q—Was there a wall surrounding the house? A—Yes.
Q—Were all the gates kept locked? A—Yes.

The suit, charging that duress was used on Adams by his wife and the First National Bank, of Boston to set up the huge trust which the contestants seek to have declared void, is being heard before Judge William M. Frost.

Vice President Olaf Olsen, lone witness to be heard in the two weeks since the hearing began, yesterday completed his testimony under questioning of Atty. Neil Leonard, counsel for the bank.

Olsen said he had seen Adams, in all, "about 15 times," testifying he had known him from 1910 to 1929.

Asked if he had noticed anything peculiar on the part of Adams in speech or mannerisms when he last saw the aged manufacturer in 1929, Olsen replied that he had not. Adams' powers of decision were strong, the banker added, and he had a "very keen mind." He declared he had never noticed any attempt on the part of Mrs. Adams to influence her husband improperly.

Judge Frost handed down a memorandum yesterday denying the claim of Atty. Lavelle that he had disqualified himself as judge in the case by referring to the suit to void the trust as "a predatory action."

Judge Frost said that when he made the comment he did not know who had drawn the bill in equity but had the impression the bill's inception was due to certain persons in California.

Lewis Charges Big Firms Aided A.F.L.

By ROBERT A. MCGILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (INS)—John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, today charged in a statement read to a Senate committee that 14 large business corporations and the National Association of Manufacturers helped the A. F. of L. draft proposed amendments to the Wagner Act "in a series of secret conferences."

Lewis' statement said he was prepared to furnish "documentary proof" of the charges, but he did not appear in person before the committee. His allegations were read by Philip Murray, a CIO vice-president, before the Senate Labor Committee now considering Wagner Act amendments.

(Editor's Note—On June 23, 1939, Joseph A. Padway, general counsel of the A. F. of L. appeared before the same committee and scoffed at charges that the A. F. of L. had been influenced by business interests in drafting proposed amendments.)

Lewis, in his statement, attacked the A. F. of L. sponsored amendments and asked for adoption of amendments drafted by the CIO.

Some of the corporations, Lewis alleged, "have been the most flagrant and notorious violators of the National Labor Relations Act."

Lewis listed 13 of the firms as follows: Weirton Steel, Columbian Enameling & Stamping, H. J. Heinz Co., Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing, Inland Steel, Borg-Warner, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Link Belt, International Harvester, Mid-States Gummed Paper, Electric Boat, Standard Steel Works and Baldwin Locomotive.

Lewis did not name the 14th firm, although his statement said "14 firms" were involved.

Expect Coughlin On Air Sunday

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin will have copies of his regular Sunday radio address ready at the usual time next Sunday, an aide said today.

The priest did not make his usual broadcast last Sunday.

(The Boston Evening American, in a copyrighted story, phoned from Detroit yesterday, said Fr. Coughlin had canceled his broadcast of last Sunday on orders from his superior, Archbishop Edward Mooney.)

The announcement that the regular procedure of distributing copies of the address to the press at the time he begins his radio address was interpreted to mean that Fr. Coughlin would be back at the microphone next Sunday.

The aide said Fr. Coughlin was at the Shrine of the Little Flower in suburban Royal Oak, but is not answering telephone calls or seeing interviewers.

CAT QUILTS TREE UNDER OWN POWER

A tree-climbing rescue problem that proved too much for South Boston police and Animal Rescue League agents was solved today by a small tiger-gray cat, central figure in a neck-risking 24-hour comedy of errors.

Supposedly trapped atop a 50-foot elm at East Seventh st. and Pleasant pl., South Boston, the ginger tabby shivered on a high perch yesterday and last night while sympathetic police and Animal Rescue League Field Agent Albert Morris tried in vain to coax her down or climb to a point where they could reach her.

Today, Morris returned determinedly to the scene, bent on getting the cat down if he had to call out the fire department's aerial tower.

To his mingled relief and chagrin, however, he found that the tree "victim," left to her own effective resources, had come down the elm the same way she went up it—under her own power!

Irish Bombers Hang After Appeal Fails

which at least six persons were injured.

British authorities blamed the I. R. A. for 231 explosions in recent months in which seven persons have been killed and 96 injured. The explosions are part of the I. R. A. campaign to force the British government to end the partition of Ireland and place Ulster (Northern Ireland) under the Dublin government.

GUARD CABINET

All members of the British Cabinet were given police protection, particularly Sir John Anderson, home secretary, who refused to interfere with the death sentences imposed upon Barnes and Richards. It was feared Sir John might be a special target for I. R. A. sympathizers and three plain clothes detectives shadowed him constantly.

Hundreds of detectives guarded post offices, railway stations and similar public buildings to prevent further bomb outrages and other disorders.

Late last night a priest gave Extreme Unction to the two condemned men, who appeared resigned to their fate after being informed that efforts to save them had proved futile.

Everywhere in England, but especially in the Birmingham region, authorities were alert to prevent a repetition of yesterday's bomb blasts which shook London, Birmingham and Manchester in protest against the hanging of Barnes and Richards. The blasts centered in railway stations and postoffices.

APPEAL FAILS

Amid the new outburst of terrorism, John W. Dulanty, Eire high commissioner to London, appealed to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for clemency for the condemned men.

This appeal failed, but after conferring with the Prime Minister Dulanty stated:

"I received his considerate attention."

The Eire government made vigorous attempts to gain a reprieve, short of an appeal to King George VI by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera. This was not done on grounds that it might be construed as an implied recognition of King George as King of Eire.

Execution Casts

Gloom Over Dublin

DUBLIN, Feb. 7 (AP)—An atmosphere of tension and gloom was evident in the capital of Ireland today as news spread of the execution of two members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army at Birmingham, England. There were no demonstrations.

A procession with black flags marched in Dublin and a deputation was sent to protest to the Irish government against the executions.

Several sporting events scheduled today in Dublin and other Irish cities were postponed because of the executions.

Tom Barry, Irish Republican of Cork, who had sought a reprieve for the condemned men, announced Republican leaders would address a public protest meeting tonight in Cork.

Guards were maintained at the residence of Sir John Massey, British representative in Ireland.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, the wearing of black armbands by men and mourning bows in the hair by girls was the only outward notice taken by Irish Nationalists of the executions.

Allies Set to Speed Real Aid to Finns

By CAPT. JOHN H. CRAIG

U. S. Marine Corps, Retired

Written Especially for International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (INS)—There were growing indications today that British and French aid to embattled Finland—confined thus far to munitions and pious expressions of good will—is soon to reach an appreciable scale.

Recent reports have told that volunteers for fighting in Finland are being recruited in Britain and France and that airplanes, as well as anti-aircraft guns, are soon to be dispatched in large numbers.

This kind of assistance would be just what the doctor ordered for the battling Finns. If they don't get such aid, their prospects of holding out many months longer are poor.

Brilliant Finnish victories on the fighting fronts have given the average American citizen a false picture of the true situation.

The tactics of their ski battalions have been unbelievably good, and they have mopped up large detachments of Russian ground troops, whose fighting has been unbelievably bad.

This is what happened on the ground, but in the air things have not been so good. At the hands of the Red air force, Finland has taken a brutal beating.

Red air marshals are applying the latest tactics of air-frightfulness in their campaign.

Although they are not applying them very efficiently or on a very extensive scale, they are making unfortunate Finland a test-tube case which the armies of Europe are watching with fascinated interest.

USE NEW BOMB

Chief instructor employed has been the thermite incendiary bomb. This devil's egg of war, described a few days ago by Robert G. Nixon, International News Service correspondent in London, has all the nations of western Europe bluffed because of its frightful effectiveness.

Neither Germany nor the Franco-British allies have used it against each other, nor did Germany use it in her Polish blitzkrieg.

The thermite bomb consists of a few pinches of chemicals in a cast iron casing, the whole generally weighing no more than a couple of pounds.

Its mission is to burn. When its chemicals are ignited it flares into unbelievable heat.

Its temperatures of combustion approximate the heat of the interior of the sun, and while burning it emits streams of molten iron. Such a bomb will burn through steel and iron if not too thick.

CITIES IN RUINS

According to observers, these infernal missiles have gotten their first trial in war at the Finns' expense. Houses in Finland are almost entirely of wood.

Estimates are that more than half the buildings in the larger towns have been destroyed. Many cities are heaps of ruins.

This means that many people have no shelter in a climate where the thermometer ranges from 10 to 40 degrees below zero. That is one way to break morale.

Even the toughest soldiers do not fight very cheerfully when they know that their families may be burning in their flaming dwellings or freezing in the snow.

The Finns have shown that they can take it beyond any people in modern history.

But if the Allies want to save the brave little northern republic and keep a fighting front open on the north flank of the Russo-German combination, they had better send fighter-planes and anti-aircraft guns and send them at once.

Gandhi Sounds Grim Warning to Britain

BOMBAY, India, Feb. 7 (INS)—If India's demands for self-rule do not succeed in the near future, "Heaven help India, Britain and the world," Mohandas K. Gandhi warned.

Gandhi's grim statement was contained in a lengthy commentary on the position of his powerful political organization, the Indian National Congress, followed the collapse yesterday of his conference with Lord Linlithgow, Viceroy of India. Their talk concerned the possibility of giving India dominion status in the Empire, similar to that enjoyed by Canada.

"The vital difference between the Congress' demand and the viceroy's offer," the wizened little political generalissimo said, "consists of the fact that the viceroy's offer contemplates the final determination of India's destiny by the British government whereas the Congress contemplates just the contrary."

REAL FREEDOM TEST

"The Congress position is a test of real freedom and it consists of the people of India determining their own destiny without outside interference."

"I see no prospect of a peaceful, honorable settlement with England unless this vital difference is obliterated."

As Gandhi issued his statement in Bombay the British viceroy conferred for an hour and a half at New Delhi with Mohammed A. Jinnah, leader of the Moslem League, second strongest group in India.

Gandhi, analyzing the minorities problem, declared that he proposes to refer "our differences to the highest and most impartial tribunal conceivable by human ingenuity, whose voice would be final." Then, turning again to his interview with the viceroy, he said:

"England has decided on the right course, namely: Accepting the position that the time has come when India must be allowed to determine her own constitution and status."

"When this is done the questions of defense, minorities, prices and European interests will automatically be dissolved."

"We (Gandhi and Linlithgow) understood each other. Both of us recognized that there existed a wide gulf between the position taken by the British government, as explained by him, and that taken by the Congress, which I put forward—though not as an accredited representative of the dumb millions."

Swiss Spy Foe Killed by Bomb

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Feb. 7 (AP)—A Swiss counter-espionage agent was killed and another detective and a German were injured severely today by the explosion of a package which the German brought into the Lausanne police headquarters.

The German, identified as Leon Zuchnig, a tailor, dashed into the police station with the package and said it had been delivered at his hotel by a messenger.

"I think it is a bomb," he was quoted.

Dutch Prepare For Jap Menace

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 7 (AP)—The newspaper De Telegraaf reported that the government had decided to strengthen defenses in The Netherlands East Indies.

The government was said to have accepted the report of an advisory committee recommending construction of three 26,000-ton battle cruisers and enlargement of the naval base at Surabaya, in the East Indies.

(Japan's conquests in China and seizure of islands in the South China Sea have caused uneasiness among Hollanders for their empire in the East, rich in petroleum, which Japan badly needs.)

BRITAIN TO REOPEN SCHOOLS

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The British government served notice on 400,000 British school children today that their war-time holiday must end to save them from a "growing demoralization."

Lord De La Warr, president of the board of education, announced in the House of Lords that school attendance for children still living in the so-called danger areas would be made compulsory.

The new policy was announced in reply to a question from the Archbishop of Canterbury. DEUT ATTEND SCHOOL.

Out of nearly 1,250,000 children now in the danger areas, those from which children were removed early in the war to places safer from air raids about 100,000 are getting no schooling, De La Warr said.

De La Warr said that whatever the risks of air raids, and he said he thought they still were great, "We must see that every child goes to school somewhere."

"If parents are not willing to send their children to the comparative safety of reception areas, then they must send them to school in town," he said. "The moment the children can be accommodated, attendance must be enforced."

HALF-TIME PROVISION

Full-time schooling is the objective, De La Warr said, but a half-time provision for all children by April will be an acceptable minimum.

Efforts are to be made to have school buildings commandeered for war purposes returned, and in some cases the same buildings may be shared by schools and civil defense organizations.

Allies Shift To Finn War

because of insistence by Premier Daladier's own Radical-Socialist party that France go to the aid of the little Baltic state.

"It is under different names one and the same conflict which had its origin in the Russian-German collusion," Le Temps declared.

Germany is leaning on Russia for effective military and economic aid, the newspaper continued, "the two forces of oppression now are only one, it is already impossible to separate them; their destinies are linked."

"Any blow against the aggressor in Finland," the newspaper concluded, "is against the ally and helper of Finland and directly affects him."

Britain Sends Planes To Aid of Finland

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, asked in the House of Commons today if the government would consider sending bombers and crews to Finland, replied that Britain already was sending planes and that he understood fliers were available in Finland.

The House cheered Maj. Gen. Sir Alfred Knox, Conservative, when he asked if every possible step was being taken to send aid quickly to Finland, who, he said, was fighting for the whole of civilization.

Butler recalled that Prime Minister Chamberlain said yesterday that the government realized the urgency of the question.

Mexican Labor Chief Is Slain

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 7 (AP)—Luis Ibanez, 39, chief of Mexico's most formidable militarized labor unit, was shot dead in suburban San Angel.

Details were not announced, but first reports indicated a personal quarrel with a San Angel police official preceded the shooting.

Ibanez headed the military and sport department of CTR (Confederacion Trabajadores de Mexico). The union itself is headed by Vicente Lombardo Toledano.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK, 200 SAVED

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The steamer Munster, 4304 tons, sank today following an explosion in which 20 were injured. More than 200 passengers and members of the crew reached land safely.

Most of the survivors from the Munster, a British vessel, were brought ashore by a tramp steamer. An official said that "no one from the Munster has been lost."

One survivor, Able Seaman Allan Clure of Liverpool, said the explosion occurred this morning accompanied by "a blue flash and a terrific blast."

Clure said another vessel about eight miles away quickly answered the ship's distress signal and "saw many aboard."

"Women and children were among the passengers and everyone behaved perfectly," he added.

TOKYO, Feb. 7 (AP)—Japan will demand formally the return of all the German seamen seized by the British from a Japanese liner, a foreign office spokesman said today.

Latest Ship Casualties

LONDON, Feb. 7 (AP)—The 121-ton Estonian freighter Ana struck a mine last night off the coast of England and three of the crew of 19, including the captain and his wife, were killed. Three others were reported missing. Among the survivors, who reached shore on a raft, were two women.

PARIS, Feb. 7 (INS)—The 974-ton Canadian Pacific cargo liner Beaverburn, which sank off the west coast of England with the loss of one of its crew, was torpedoed while under a British naval convoy, according to information in Paris today. Seventy-six of the crew were rescued.

MALDEN TEACHER ROUTS DOG AS 12 CHILDREN ARE BITTEN

Miss Frances Wilson stepped from the role of respected principal to one of an admired heroine today in the eyes of her 170 pupils in the Ayers School, Maplewood, Malden.

For she came to their rescue, driving off a black dog which raced through the crowded school yard and bit 12 youngsters, from six to nine years of age.

The dog was outside when school classes were over and ran among the children, nipping at their legs and arms. All of the wounds later were declared to be superficial.

With a broom for a weapon, Miss Wilson ran from the building and rained blows on the animal until she had driven him from the school yard.

Then she gathered the children in the school building and sent for the police. Doctors were called and cauterized the wounds of the children.

The children who were attacked and bitten were: David Sanford of Garden Park, Henry Lodie of Beachview (ter.), Donald Favarat of Jacob st., Susan Moller of Echo st., Athena Chinopoulos of Orchard st.

Robert Rouillard of Beachview ave., Carl Cracker of Columbia st., Alfred Colombo of High Rock rd., Robert Murphy of Fairview ave., Beatrice Drake of Wolcott (ter.), Matthew Sheehan of Garden st. and Ruth Gewenger of Columbia st.

Dr. William Simpson, veterinary, could find nothing wrong with the dog but ordered him quarantined two weeks for observation. The dog was being boarded at the Sylvan st. Malden, home of Mrs. Josephine Eisner who said he belongs to a Reading man.

Chauffeur Post Open to Driver

Lieut. John Foley of the Joy at police station today expected to have an unusual job for some applicant of the free employment bureau for youths.

A man, unidentified, telephoned Foley, saying he would call at the station to see about hiring a youth to drive his car until his license to drive, which was suspended, is restored.

MURIEL DEEGAN AT GILCHRIST'S Models Beautiful Platina Fox Piece

First Platina Fox Skins Shown at Gilchrist Store

Last year the Duchess of Windsor wore a marvelous, heavy, soft, pearly fox skin about her shoulders. It cost $5000 and there were only two others for sale like it in the world. It was Norwegian platina fox.

Two skins of Norwegian platina are being displayed in a Gilchrist Company window today. They are valued at $1500 and were purchased at auction in New York. There were only 399 platina pelts in all.

The story of the platina fox is not widely known. In 1933, a poor fisherman named Eversen, who had a little fox farm in Dyroy, on the north coast of Norway, found a peculiar freak among a litter of pups. It was an albino, and he called it Mons. He took Mons to a show, and a famous breeder bought him.

Thereafter, Mons was mated with a silver fox, and the pups showed a beautiful blend of the characteristics of both parents. They were kept a deep secret within Norway, and the first skin was sold in Oslo in 1937. It wasn't until last year that any of Mons' descendants found their way to fur markets outside.

The pelts in the Gilchrist Company exhibit are a very pale pearly gray, with the cross on the back characteristic of the silver fox.

family in deep blue gray. Not only the Duchess of Windsor but a French princess noted for her taste and elegance and the Crown Princess Martha of Norway now own platina foxes.

Taft to Stay Out Of Illinois Primary

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (INS)—Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Republican Presidential candidate, formally announced today he would not enter the Illinois primary, April 9.

Taft for some time had been considering entrance of a slate of delegates in the Illinois race, and the filing of his name on the preferential ballot, but today decided he would not do so.

G-Men Join Drive On Florida Gaming

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 7 (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation has joined hands with Florida prosecutors in a drive to stop gambling at the height of the lower East Coast's winter tourist season.

Three suits to close alleged gambling establishments in this area—the preliminary step in a drive backed by State Atty.-Gen. George Couper Gibbs—were based on information furnished by FBI operatives.

The G-men said their information was gathered in the course of other federal investigations and turned over to the State at the request of Gibbs.

This link of Federal and State enforcement agents developed a few hours after FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's testimony before a congressional committee, describing the Miami area as an underworld mecca, was made public.

The first step in the new anti-gambling drive struck three resorts in South Broward County, about 35 miles north of downtown Miami. The establishments were named as the farm in Hallandale and the F. & W. Bar and the Pine Inn in Hollywood.

The state asked Circuit Court to enjoin the night clubs from gambling operations.

Two assistant attorneys general continued conferences with other enforcement officers, reportedly preparing similar injunction proceedings against other alleged spots in the same area and farther south in the Miami section.

"We have good reasons to believe," Hoover said, "that the operations of confidence men in the Miami area are carried on at least with the knowledge of some law enforcement officials."

"In connection with these conditions, which has extended over a period of years, we had received assurances from the local authorities that they were glad to fully cooperate. But they have not done so. They have only given lip service."

Miami area officials who would comment at any time denied their law enforcement departments were unwilling to co-operate.

TO ERASE 'SMEAR' OF DIES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 (INS). Hailed by its leaders as ending a "smear-Dies campaign," the House consented to cleansing the Congressional Record of attacks on Chairman Martin Dies of the committee investigating un-American activities, based on forged documents.

Rep. Frank E. Hook (D.) of Michigan, obtained unanimous consent of the House to expunge from the record his attack in which he had sought to link Dies with the Silver Shirts and the Christian Front, after admitting the documents he used were forged. He apologized to the House and to the Dies committee, as well as to Chairman Dies.

The action climaxed a dramatic day in which William Dudley Pelley, long sought Silver Shirt Legion chief, voluntarily surrendered to the Dies committee, and told the rules committee the documents used by Hook were forged over his name.

Pelley was closely guarded by the Dies committee tonight. He was restrained under a subpoena and is being held for questioning.

Sheriff L. E. Brown of Asheville, N. C., was sent copies of warrants to the FBI and Washington police, stating that Pelley is wanted for alleged violation of probation following a conviction for violation of a "Blue Sky" law in April, 1933. Pelley's appearance before the rules and Dies committees brought to an end the House phase of the forced letters. The Dies committee has referred the entire case to Attorney General Robert H. Jackson for "appropriate action."

"This is the end of the 'smear-Dies campaign,'" said Rep. Keefe (R.) of Wisconsin, after Hook withdrew his charges against Dies.

Probe Big Fire In Fall River

FALL RIVER, Feb. 7.—Federal, state and city investigators are probing the cause of a $500,000 fire which swept the six-story 60-year-old Westmore Mill, now used as a WPA storehouse, destroying $100,000 in federal surplus commodities, today probed the possibility that illegal smoking may have caused the blaze.

The fire, which made 800 persons idle, started in a third-floor toy repair shop where smoking was banned because of a large store of paint, oil and shellac.

Firemen from Providence and Newport, R. I., Brockton and New Bedford aided in fighting the blaze, worst to hit Fall River since the $5,000,000 conflagration in 1928.

More than 500 sewing machines and thousands of yards of cloth were destroyed in addition to surplus food stores.

Most seriously affected among the 800 WPA employees left idle were 600 women on a sewing project.

BARES 'MANIAC'S' ATTACK AS FAKE

Yearning of a love-lorn youth to shine as a hero in the eyes of his sweetheart caused him to slash his face with a fountain pen and report himself as the latest victim of the "Black Spade," Everett madman, a confession in the hands of Everett police revealed today.

After several hours of grilling, Robert McKay, 19, of Lynn st., Malden, was said as admitting that the lurid story he told about his struggle with the mad slasher was nothing but the fruit of his own imagination, designed to get his "picture in the papers and impress my girl friend."

MAY ASK MENTAL TEST

Police said a mental test may be asked for McKay.

Coming on the heels of "Black Spade" threat notes to Mayor Frank E. Lewis and his family and the slashing of a 15-year-old Everett boy, McKay's appearance at the Everett police station with a thrilling recital of putting the mystery slasher to flight caused great excitement in the probe in which G-men had already joined.

The youth reported he was walking along Estes st., Everett, the scene of an earlier "Black Spade" assault, when a man came up from behind and shouted "I'm the Black Spade" and pulled McKay's overcoat up over his head. While the youth was struggling to free himself, he said, his assailant struck him on the head, knocking him to the ground.

FACE BADLY CUT

Regaining his feet, McKay said, he rushed at the man who lashed at him with an implement resembling a nutmeg scraper, cutting the youth's face badly.

According to the new police version, McKay read about the "Black Spade" case in the newspapers in his room at home and performed the pen slashing there to back up his story. He then called in the police.

Last Friday night a "Black Spade" was reported by Henry Minchel, 15, of Estes st., Everett, near his home.

Because of the earlier threats, the two daughters of Mayor Lewis, Joanne, 7, and Betty Jane, 8, were accompanied by policemen last night when they ventured out to appear in the play "Cinderella" at the Horace Mann School.

Cambridge, Everett Fire Rescues

An Everett mother and a Cambridge police sergeant performed hero rescues in two early morning fires today.

Mrs. Mary Luzzi, 37, of Belmont st., Everett, found the upstairs blocked by flames after a stove explosion had set her cottage home afire.

She pushed her four children out a window to a campy and jumping herself prepared to catch the children as they leaped. A neighbor, Euston Bean, arrived with a ladder and aided in the rescue.

Sgt. John O'Brien of the Cambridge police carried Warren Carlier, 5, and his sister, Nancy, 7, to safety after a back stairs fire broke out in a 16-apartment block in Brookline st., Cambridge.

Scores of residents were escorted to the street by police as heavy smoke filled the block. Fireman Frank Bivau of the Rescue Company received severe burns on his left hand when he grasped a door handle in a burning hallway. He was treated at Cambridge City Hospital.

Damage was estimated at $1000. Cause was not determined.

Slight damage was caused in the Burns funeral parlors, Norfolk st., Cambridge in an oil burner explosion. The flames were quickly extinguished.

2 Escape Death In Crossing Crash

FALL RIVER, Feb. 7.—George and Rose Hutchinson of Greenwood park, North Westport, brother and sister, narrowly escaped death today when their coupe crashed into the side of a New Haven locomotive at the Narrows crossing.

Although the automobile was badly crushed, and left cylinder caps of the locomotive were damaged, Hutchinson escaped with a shaking up and the sister with an injured right knee.

We are greatly interested in a recent letter to the Times from New York State Senator Phelps Phelps (the two Phelps are okay, Mr., Printer) of Manhattan, arguing in favor of his bill for a state lottery as a means of raising revenue for emergencies. Among other things he says:

"My contention is that most people gamble in some form or other, and since that fact has been substantiated a number of years, why not give the over-taxed citizens of this state a breathing spell and gain revenue in the painless manner?"

Our answer to that question is why not, indeed. And while we have always been a little bit dubious about the moral advisability of preying upon human frailty, legally or otherwise, we might be willing to go along with Senator Phelps Phelps on his bill if he would arrange to abolish the tax on that his lottery would be a breathing spell to the over-taxed citizen.

We will go even farther than that. We will definitely promise to make our friends at the Senate and Phelps Phelps bill if he can produce proof of one single instance of state taxes being reduced in any state in the Union directly through the medium of gambling in any form.

The argument that is always used by the advocates of legalized betting on the horse races is that the revenue will help reduce taxes. It was the argument used in influencing the voters to pass the pari-mutuels amendment in New York recently.

The voters were told that the mutuels would yield a revenue of $10,000,000 to the state, an estimate that cooler heads have since scaled down to about $4,000,000.

However, even after figuring in the possible returns from the mutuels, there has been talk of raising taxes in New York State to make up a needed $15,000,000, and if that should happen those who voted for the mutuels as a revenue measure that would help reduce taxes have a right to a beef on the ground that they were horn-swoggled.

If Senator Phelps Phelps could guarantee that for every dollar raised by his lottery there would be an equivalent reduction in state taxes, his measure might be worth trying, if only for a limited period until the emergency passes.

But the Senator himself tells the unvarnished truth when, after remarking that taxes imposed on sales and gas taxes and cigarettes to meet an emergency continue on though the emergency ceases to exist, he states:

"One seldom hears of a tax being repealed."

We leave no doubt that the Senator's lottery would raise an enormous sum for the state but if no tax would be repealed or even reduced to compensate therefor, what good would it do the taxpayer? It might only add to the drain on his resources by making a lottery project of his.

Doris Dudley To Star Here

Doris Dudley, who recently opened that talent is no match for sex, is putting her talent to work here soon in the road company of Clare Boothe's satirical comedy drama, "Margin For Error," due Monday, February 19, at the Plymouth Theater.

Messrs. Aldrich and Myers, who sponsored the appearance of John Barrymore in "My Dear Children," have cast Miss Dudley for the she-who-gets-spanked privileges, will present the Boothe play.

"Margin For Error" makes it three in a row for Miss Boothe! First was "The Women," then "Kiss The Boys Good Bye" and her present hit, declared by Walter Winchell to be "my favorite show." The play was directed by Otto L. Preminger who also directed "My Dear Children" and gave to Miss Boothe's scintillating lyrics and dialogue in "Margin For Error" a most brilliant translation to the stage.

The story of "Margin For Error" concerns the doings of a German consul in his consulate in an American city.

The office serves as headquarters for propaganda against the American form of government, and is under guard of a Jewish police officer.

The latter, finding that the consul had been murdered, calls on all of his sense and power to solve the mystery of the slaying, fearing and knowing that the Jewish people in European countries and throughout the world will be punished for this officer's apparent dereliction in his duty of protecting the consulate.

An six other members of the company all have real motives for committing the murder, a most perplexing task confronts him. Miss Boothe has worked out this angle of her play in a most sensational and highly satisfactory manner.

Miss Boothe personally selected the cast which in addition to Doris Dudley, includes Kurt Katsch, Sheldon Leonard, Morgan Farley, Alexander Clark, Don Terry and C. E. Smith.

'FIGHTING 69TH' MOVES TO PARAMOUNT, FENWAY SCREENS

PAGE 17—EVENING AMERICAN, Wednesday, Feb. 7, 1940

NELSON EDDY and Ilona Massey in "Balalaika," which comes to Met screen tomorrow.

'Balalaika' Coming to Met

It is the principle of the thing that transfers "The Fighting 69th" from the Metropolitan to the Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow, for this thrilling World War drama with an all-male cast has been doing "whammo" business at the Met, in Variety's classic phrase, this past week.

As its patrons are well aware, the Met rarely holds over even a sellout picture a second week, and so you'll be seeing "The Fighting 69th" at the Paramount or Fenway Theaters next week if you have missed it at the Met.

The Met's Lenten week offering is "Balalaika," co-starring Nelson Eddy and Ilona Massey.

"Balalaika" is a story of old Russia before, during and after the revolution. It is based on the London stage musical success by Eric Maschwitz and is one of the most elaborate productions in which Nelson Eddy has appeared.

ILONA MASSEY CO-STARS

Eddy's co-star, Ilona Massey, is Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational new singing find. On the basis of a photograph snapped on a beach in Budapest by an amateur photographer, Miss Massey received a contract from a leading Hungarian theatrical producer. Later, Hollywood signed her up.

In "Balalaika," Miss Massey sings three solo numbers, "Tanya," "Schererzade" and "At the Balalaika." She and Eddy present "Magic of You" Love in duet. Eddy's solo numbers are "Flow, Flow, White Wine," "Ride, Cossack, Ride," "Paris Balalaika," "Come This Holy Night of Christmas" and "Volga Boat Song."

IT'S REAL THING

Just a glance at the cast of "The Fighting 69th," the Paramount and Fenway film feature starting tomorrow, is convincing proof that here is no framed-up Hollywood version of war.

James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are the picture's co-stars. Importantly featured in supporting roles are Alan Hale, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn and Frank McHugh.

There is realism, humor, comedy, courage in "The Fighting 69th," a Warner picture that takes you into the front line trenches and doesn't spare the cooties.

ASH WEDNESDAY, observed today in many churches and lands as the beginning of the period of penitence and prayer preparatory to the great Christian feast of Easter, was never more important or significant.

For the second time in the present century, the Lenten season finds leading nations at war, aggression rampant, tyranny defying restraint and whole populations fighting for their very existence. It cannot be argued that these unfortunate events occur because ecclesiastical teaching has failed.

It must be conceded that men have failed ecclesiastical teaching. Today millions will hear the words, "Remember, man, that thou art dust and unto dust thou shalt return."

The purpose is to make everyone realize that life is transient and that there are things more desirable than gold and power.

Those who heed this warning will be inspired to work for the welfare of others and the well-being of generations yet to be born.

Those who close their ears to it will probably continue destructions that benefit no one and accomplish nothing.

But the spirit of Ash Wednesday is hopeful despite widespread sorrow and suffering.

In the solemn devotions in church and home there is assurance that truth is eternal and God's protection everlasting.

More than fifty major wars claiming millions of human lives have been waged since the beginning of the Christian era.

Yet the wisdom of Divine utterance is as apparent today as it was twenty centuries ago.

And Ash Wednesday, unharmed by those who have desecrated its meaning in the past, still challenges the minds and hearts of men to turn from the sordid paths of earthly greed and materialism and to follow in Christ's tranquil way.

The Lenten prayers of Boston, America and the world will consequently be for PEACE—peace that can resist the assaults of hate, intolerance and war.

Everyone hopes that Easter, glorious anniversary of the Saviour's triumphant resurrection, will see it become a reality.

NEW DEALERS TALK a great deal about the Government's generosity to Massachusetts. Their favorite pastime is picturing the current Administration in Washington as a big-hearted Santa Claus who singles out our particular section of the country for bigger and better favors.

Unfortunately for New Dealers, statistics are still obtainable.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939, the Federal government collected $160,905,000 in Massachusetts. During the same period, Federal grants and expenditures within this State totalled $144,614,000.

In other words, Washington received $16,281,000 MORE than was spent in Massachusetts.

Different indeed was the experience in some other States.

Wyoming paid $2,826,000 and received $20,734,000; Arkansas paid $7,943,000 and received $82,967,000; Arizona paid $4,379,000 and received $26,372,000; Mississippi paid $6,152,000 and received $84,745,000, and New Mexico paid $2,884,000 and received $26,243,000.

It would be interesting to know which State is spending the $16,281,000 of Massachusetts money that went to Washington and failed to come back.

THE INSTINCTIVE DESIRE of the American people to stay out of Europe's war is based on true understanding of the nation's interests.

War fetters enterprise, destroys progress.

If the same energy and talent were devoted to constructing ships or shoes or sealing wax, the world would witness a spectacular lift in the material well-being of plain people in all nations.

The extent to which this is true was graphically portrayed by William McC. Martin, Jr., president of the New York Stock Exchange, who recently revealed that "the huge costs of the World War would have been sufficient to have supplied (1) every family in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany, Russia, Belgium and Australia with a $2500 house on a $500 lot of at least one acre, with $1000 worth of furniture; (2) a $5,000,000 library for every community of 200,000 inhabitants in those countries; (3) a $10,000,000 university for every such community; (4) a fund that at 5 per cent interest would yield enough to pay indefinitely $1000 a year to an army of 125,000 teachers and 125,000 nurses, and (5) still leave enough to buy every piece of property and all wealth in France and Belgium at a fair market price."

THE WEATHER MAN, predicting an imminent Spring, has the support of the calendar. Lent's beginning directs attention to the important fact that the approaching Easter, falling on March 24, will be the earliest observation of the feast in 27 years.

The time to think about dressing up one's self and home properly to celebrate Easter is NOW.

Spring Symphony

IN the spring the woodlands shimmer in the faintest hues of green . . . In the spring the dreamy willows glow again with silvery sheen . . . In the spring the bobolink pours forth his joyous mating-song . . . In the spring the brooklet chuckles as it gaily flows along . . . In the spring the dog-toothed violets and the crocuses come out . . . In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of trout.

Human Side of News

By EDWIN C. HILL

WAR GETS in our hair and vice versa. Various countries of Europe have supplied the tresses of multiple shades and texture for transformations and toupees, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for American dealers to get consignments.

Leo B. Simonson, Fifth avenue hair merchant for 50 years, tells us that the shortage is not yet acute, but will be if the war goes on for a year or two more. His firm is stocked up for about six months.

A transformation, though less elaborate than Norma Shearer's beautiful headdress in "Marie Antoinette," nonetheless requires a lot of additions and betterments as the years go by. A lady whose tresses are wearing a bit thin obtains a rare shade of centre which Swedish peasant girls supply in abundance.

NORMA SHEARER
 As Queen Marie Antoinette

ANOTHER lady is perhaps dependent upon lustrous dark tresses from the neighborhood of Posuoli Italy or hair of dark brown from northern Italy. It would seem possible to find replacements here, but Mr. Simonson says precise shadings and quality are so important that change is difficult.

You can't trade in your transformation for a new model. European peasant girls harvest their hair systematically, to build up wedding dowries. That explains our dependence on the European market.

It is only within the last century, perhaps in the last 50 years, that hair could circulate freely around the world as merchandise. For countless ages hair has been deep in the domain of primitive magic, which has governed not only its arrangement but its disposal after being cut.

In Swabia, clipped hair must be placed where neither the sun nor moon may ever shine on it. In Poland, particularly in the region near Danzig, shorn locks must be buried in a bag under the threshold.

In the Solomon Islands, any warrior who gets a hair cut is in deadly fear until he has his hair buried deeply in some secluded spot. Should a single lock fall into the hands of an enemy, our shorn warrior will thereafter be just a push-over.

OLD SUPERSTITIONS filter down into today. I remember that many years ago a barber in a crowded neighborhood of New York's immigrant population gave me a modern instance of the above.

The barber was puzzled when street gamins would dash in and snatch a wisp of hair from some other lad who was getting a hair cut.

The explanation was simple. You are bucking a formidable opponent in a crap game and your magic isn't working—your crooning or whatever it is. To get the real "oomph" into it, you caress the dice with a few strands of the enemy's hair. That turns the trick. You make a string of five straight passes.

One could find satisfaction in nothing that Mr. Simonson's business has flourished with no detriment from ancient superstitions, no carry over from our savage past. It is modern war, considerably more frightful than anything the savage ever devised, which now snarls up the hair business.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—When I returned to Washington from Poughkeepsie, after a hurried dash from Grand Central to Pennsylvania Station in New York, barely making the Washington train, all my guests were already here, and Mrs. Gray met me at the station to tell me of their safe arrival.

They had all gone to bed, so our first meeting was at breakfast this morning. After breakfast, we separated to go our various ways, but Mrs. Joseph Patterson, who is staying with me, is a member of the NYA conference which opened here this morning, so she and I had only to go down to the East Room to start our day's work.

This first session of the National Youth Administration was given up to speeches which attempted to set the problems of the NYA girls before the groups.

THE NATIONAL Youth Administration feels that it wants to do the best possible job, both for the young people who are still in school or college and who receive some cash payments for which they do specified work in connection with the school or college, and also for those young people on the Work Projects.

These are set up to meet the

FIRST LADY WITH NATIONAL YOUTH LEADERS
 Aubrey Williams, Mrs. Roosevelt and Charles Taussig

demands of the out-of-school, out-of-work young women under 25 years of age, and are planned with the hope of training them for jobs.

Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher gave a most stimulating address in which she stressed the point that women had simply followed their jobs out of the home into the world and were continuing their usual occupations, which now existed outside the home.

THE MODERN HOME no longer requires the work of women and, therefore, they search for an outlet and find it almost entirely in the same type of service which they rendered at one time within the four walls of their homes.

Some of the statements by young people at the close of the morning were very interesting and from now on the sessions will be discussion meetings. I hope we will face the problems before us and receive some good suggestions on how to do a better job than we are doing today.

NORRIS' HAT LOST AT WHITE HOUSE

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Feb. 7. Senator Norris now wears $5 hats because he lost his $20 hat at the White House... Sheik Khali Ben Ibrahim al-Kawaf of Arabia, who is visiting America to negotiate some oil deals, was embarrassed when he arrived at El Morocco and discovered the Senegambian doorman wearing a costume which was almost exactly like the Sheikh's... The Racquet Tennis Club's oldest member, the 102-year-old Mr. Cook, finally lost his backgammon championship there a few days ago. "That's all right, though," he warned. "I'll get even next year." Mayor LaGuardia received a gold-and-diamond card from Dinny Mahoney, signifying honorary membership in the Detectives Endowment Ass'n. "I hereby assign all you detectives," Fiorelli told the assemblage, "to protect this card for me and to guard it from one young man who'll try to snatch it—my son, Eric!"... With all reporters barred, the Mayor assured them that the new pension bill would prove effective. "It will be all right," he declared. "Frankly, I don't own a thing in this world, except my pension rights. If that set-up goes bankrupt—then I'll be bankrupt, too."

SENATOR WHEELER is very much pleased at the support being given him by John L. Lewis. "I smoked my first 25-cent cigar last week," Wheeler boasted. "Lewis gave it to me!"... Gov. Keen Johnson, of Kentucky, is serious about reducing the cost of operating his State government. Even for personal letters, Johnson uses the stationery of his predecessor, Happy Chandler... President Roosevelt complained to some dinner guests that when "Gone With the Wind" was shown at the White House he was in the room next door trying to write a speech, and that the booming of the cannon, during the fall-of-Atlanta sequence, distracted him for a long time... "Don't say that," Mrs. Roosevelt cautioned. "It might get back"... "Get back to whom?" returned the President. "To General Sherman?"

AUGUST HELFELD, the New York correspondent for a chain of Nazi papers, gave a party at his home here Saturday night... In the midst of the celebration, the nefa caught fire and Helfeld shouted: "What'll I do?"... "If this is an American party—throw water," a newspaperman suggested. "If it's a Nazi party—throw books"... Bernt Balchen, who was Commander Byrd's pilot, states he returned to America to buy 400 planes for Finland. "I'll buy them from anybody who'll sell," he announces.

A CHALLENGE! So Ranny Weeks is coming to The Mayfair, April 1, is he? ... He is according to our compatriot, George W. Clarke, who had been talking to Harry Marshard, who (presumably) had been talking to Ranny and Mickey Redstone, successor to Alex Finn at The Mayfair's managerial helm... Mr. Clarke drops the news nonchalantly, interrupting a veritable bombshell of a statement with an "incidentally"... Furthermore, Mr. Clarke says that this "should end reports that Alex Finn has signed him for his new place through the William Morris office."

WELL, THESE "REPORTS" occurred in this space... And so... At seven o'clock tonight, your reporter will be at The Mayfair... He will identify to any parties interested a man, who will not be wearing a red carnation... But this man will have a grand note in one pocket and ten C-notes in another, and one pocketful is available for matching a similar amount by Mr. Marshard, with the other bundle awaiting the pleasure of Mr. Redstone... As for Mr. Clarke, (but speaking for myself) he and I will bet a dollar—if we happen to be holding

THE MONEY in the pockets of the man who will not be wearing a carnation is available for wagering at even money that Mr. Weeks will NOT appear at The Mayfair on April 1 which happens to be April Fool's Day.

AS FOR OUR WAGER with Mr. Clarke... The terms will be simple... We will bet that our "report" that Ranny will play for Mr. Finn at a Boston nightclub sometime in mid-March or not later than April 15 is a truthful "report"... Mr. Finn's new nightclub will be decorated by Ruben Bodenhorn, the Boston bel Geddes who originally designed The Mayfair and the Coconut Grove... Sophie Tucker will be Mr. Finn's opening attraction... (As we "reported")... And George Hale will stage a sparkling girl-show (as we are now reporting for the first time)... Well boys?

THE PALMOUTH SECTION OF THE CAPE will find tourists and natives knee deep in movie stars this summer—if... Re-creation of a summer theater at Silver Beach—near the site where the old one stood before the hurricane of '38 will be the lure... The "if" in the situation is whether a promotion well begun by Charlie Abbott, landlord of the glorious strip of beach front known as Old Silver Beach—can be completed successfully... Mr. Abbott believes that all is well, and is taking a trip next week to Hollywood.

MEANTIME, A REVIEW OF THE PROGRESS made to date should be interesting... Promoter Abbott is on a hunt for $30,000—or a few thousands more if possible... His prospective investors are young stars of the theater and movies who began their careers as members of the Silver Beach stock companies of recent

ANNA NEAGLE GETS NEW FILM BID

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—I did a little key-hole peeking today and learned, to my surprise, that Frank Lloyd is negotiating with Anna Neagle to play the feminine lead in "Trees of Liberty." If Miss Neagle signs a contract, that will mean that she will make her first picture in a long, long time... I hear, on reliable authority, that Wilcox feels the script is so good that he will not stand in his star's way should she accept the "Loved One." And between you and me, I hear it is practically settled. Cary Grant has the male lead so she will co-star with Cary a break for any femme star.

night and merely danced with her; Conrad Nagel very devoted to Gladys Eklund at a party where they were lunched. She is well known in radio circles: Countess Dorothy Di Frasso's emerald earrings the talk of the town, they are so chic and different. She went them at the dinner the Samuel Goldwyn gave for Victor Krumpholtz, Hollywood's millionaire banker; saw more people I haven't in ages at the cocktail party Frank Hunter and Paul Levison gave Jack Krindler of 21 fame at the Beverly Hills Hotel. Ruth Taylor and Paul Zuckerman here for a month greeting old friends. Phyllis Brooks, pounds heavier, fishing here and there; Frisella Lawson, so pretty. Wendy Barrie all done up in a grey sports dress and Arleen Whelan a picture in black velvet, Jessica and Dick Barthelmess arrived late—Jess enthusiastic over her new ship.

WATCH MAUREEN O'HARA, the Irish girl Charles Laughton brought to Hollywood as his leading lady in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." I am not alone in this belief. Letters arrive daily from fans asking about her.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

WHEN I SAW my husband lurching with another woman, I was stunned. It could have been a business appointment were it not for the tender way he was looking at her across the table—the same tender way he had once looked into my eyes.

In a daze I walked and walked, my mind in a turmoil. Our life together had been placid, if not exciting. There had been nothing to prepare me for this shock.

When I confronted him with all the evidence, real and imagined, I had worked myself up into a rage. I said much that was unforgivable.

But he was humble, because—he admitted—he had been carried away by something that he couldn't understand or control. For many months he had resisted this mad infatuation. Now that it was out in the open, he begged me to help him to overcome it, to get back to sanity. He promised to give up the other woman, if I would forgive him and try to understand.

I COULD not forgive him. My heart was full of bitterness. I wanted to make him suffer as I had suffered.

So, in all the thousand and one petty ways that a woman can torment a man, I took my revenge on him. I humiliated him, tried to destroy his confidence in himself and his sense of achievement in anything that he accomplished. I look back now with shame and deep regret at my vindictiveness.

He bore it bravely, convinced that he deserved this abuse, and that somehow our love would reassert itself and all would be well again.

But he became ill and finally I came face to face with the fact that I might lose him. It was then that I prayed, with my whole heart and soul, that my bitter lesson might not have to be learned at such a price. I saw, at last, that my sin was far worse than his; I saw my cruelty and lack of understanding in its true light.

UNDESERVING though I was, my prayers were answered. When at last he was on the way to recovery, he became aware of the change in me. One day he took my hands in his and said, "You have forgiven me." I nodded, overcome with emotion. "Your eyes are kind again," he murmured, happily.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

IT'S MANY A DAY since anyone handed Hollywood such a surprise as did little Jane Bryan when she eloped with Justin Dart.

A quiet, sweet-faced youngster, she didn't raise much of a rumpus at first. While the regular Glamour Girls were throwing their tantrums in the bright lights, Janey was plugging along, playing her parts with simple, unstrained efficiency—a bit better each time.

Rung by rung she climbed the ladder. A score of lesser roles then amazingly, before anyone suspected it, she was on top! Starring with Paul Muni in "We Are Not Alone." With the whole world sitting up and asking questions.

Janey and the great Muni! Where had she been all this time? And where would she be going now, with the stardust in her eyes and the producers' good, red gold piled behind her back? "Astounding! Incredible! Tre-ee-nendous!" shrieked the dope sheets. "The Duse of tomorrow! Watch her smoke!"

BUT FOR ONCE the prophets were wrong. Janey wasn't leaving any smoke to watch. As quietly as she'd made her way to the top-rung stardom that had seemed all desirable, so quietly she now turned her back on it all and went to Love. Left all the rest of it behind her—the Hollywood honey and hoopla, ballyhoo and baloney—and shipped away to Chicago to be a regular wife to a regular man and mother to his two little tykes.

"But it can't be!" everyone shrieked. "She doesn't really mean it. It's just another publicity stunt!"

But it could be, and it was. For once, something real had happened in Hollywood, something honest and tender and lasting. Her Dad assumed it up—better, perhaps, than he knew—when the Press Boys came asking.

"You're young, folks. Isn't an act," said he, in the face of their disbelieving grins. "Jane knows what she's doing. She's given it all up—the ambition and everything—for a real joy and a real love."

THERE'S MORE to life than the noise and glitter and the grip of power. There's a "still, small voice" speaking—for those who are silent enough to hear. There are "everlasting Arms" reaching—for those who are sensitive enough to feel. There are Beauty and Peace, Dignity and Wisdom for those who have the courage to walk apart.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Laugh and Tour America With Jiggs In the Boston Sunday Advertiser

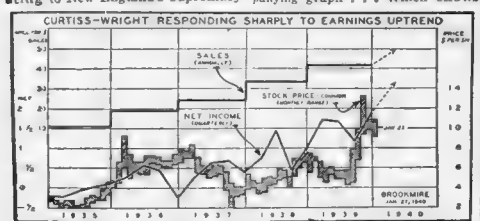

The Gold Rush!

HUGH E. BRADSHAW Massachusetts Top Shoe State Financial Editor

Massachusetts is still the top shoe manufacturing state in the nation... While New England accounts for more than a third of the total annual output of the United States... All of which is something of a surprise to those who mistakenly thought the depredations of competition had reduced the section to a minor shoe industry role...

THE OTHER... States contributing to New England's supremacy are New Hampshire and Maine... And all three registered increases during 1939... The figures show gains of 4 1/2, 4 and 3 per cent respectively for Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts... The important factors in the rise in United States shoe output to a new all-time high last year... The New England Shoe and Leather Association which supplies us the figures notes that upward revisions in them will be made shortly... Due the fact output statistics used do not include manufacturers normally accounting for about 2 per cent of the total...

the remarkable uptrend in sales is now finding reflection in a sharply rising earnings curve... And therein lies the reason for the lift in both the common and "A" stocks... The company is an old pioneer now enjoying new growth... Largely because of the sudden spurt in demand for military aircraft... Curtis also produces a well diversified line of commercial planes... And the increasing importance of its propeller division is providing the company with well rounded manufacturing program...

NOTEBOOK... Another "come" in the aviation field is Brewster... We understand the company's unfilled orders at the end of '39 were about $10,000,000... A small profit for last year may be shown... But 1940 is definitely the year of promise... With per share net in January placed at 60 cents... And full year figures in the neighborhood of $3... Government business which Bucyrus-Erie has on hand is said to be very important to the company... Since it largely consists of small excavating shovels... The buying point for wheat is fixed at 95 cents for the May contract by one astute observer... Who recommends scale down accumulation begin there.

STOCK MARKET... Action improves immediately when the steel point upward... The group has been so widely advertised speculative activity pivots about to the exclusion of all other important sections... However, it is our opinion that the group does not have to become buoyant in order for a rally to develop... It will be enough if it throws off reactionary tendencies and creeps ahead... For the greatest danger to average prices at the moment is acute weakness... Especially in a group regarded as the bellwether of heavy industry... For it goes without saying prosperity, or even mild recovery, is out of the question without durable goods revival.

National Biscuit
NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—National Biscuit Co. reported 1939 net income after preferred requirements amounting to $10,597,639 or $1.68 a common share, compared with the 1938 figure of $11,063,453 or $1.76 a share.

Stock Prices Improve in Dull Trading

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (AP)—Stocks gained slightly today under the influence of a narrow trickle of buying orders. Fractured gains were made all along the list, but transactions were small. Metals were leading the market.

The advancing issues included American Smelting, Kennecott, Inco, and others. Bonds showed slight gains. Commodities were uneven, but generally held most of the gains made in yesterday's rally. Foreign markets were dull with prices unchanged.

A leading commission house said "a base that has been about three weeks in the making" gave opportunity for a "temporary upswing" in some classifications.

Traders saw additional indications of the present recession of industrial activity from the December high in the Edison Electrical Institute's report of declining electric power production last week. The institute said the output declined 1 per cent to 2,541,358,000 kilowatt hours in the third consecutive week of reduction. Nevertheless, the report had its cheering side, too, for the output was 11.1 per cent higher than in the like 1939 week.

STOCK EXCHANGE MOVE RUMORED

NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (INS)—Wall Street rocked today with another bomb—different from the mystery charge which scored the Sub-Treasury building a dozen years ago or the blast which tore gaping holes in the Equitable building. This was a verbal bomb in the proposal by Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey to move the Stock Exchange into the Garden State.

The financial district without the Stock Exchange is almost as inconceivable as the financial district without the statue of George Washington on its pedestal in front of the Sub-Treasury, yet Governor Moore indicated that serious consideration has been given to moving the exchange.

Behind the apparent restlessness is forthright dissatisfaction with the State tax on stock transactions. Graded upward from three cents per share along with the federal tax of four cents, it runs to important money in the transfer of any considerable number of shares.

Moore revealed the extent of dissatisfaction in a letter to a brokerage firm in which he said: "Several interested people have discussed with me the possibility of the removal of the New York Stock Exchange to New Jersey. I am informed that the conditions imposed by New York are such as to make some change not only desirable but necessary."

GOOD SUGGESTION FOR TAXPAYERS

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKESYER
International News Service Economic Commentator
Here's a suggestion to the 4,000,000 payers of Federal income taxes: attach to the tax checks on March 15 a brief memorandum calling upon the government spenders to go easy in distributing the taxpayers' dough.

This would help to dramatize the fact that generous public officeholders are giving away other people's money.

It would remind bureaucrats that, as former Senator Gore of Oklahoma phrased it, the public treasury is an empty purse except for what citizens contribute in taxes.

If the taxpayers become articulate, they might suggest to the tax collectors that the worm is turning and that the tax payer would like to have his own purchasing power enlarged through reduction of the tax burden.

In the various states and in the federal government, the economist declared in a speech before the Milwaukee Rotary Club, "depends on whether we stop fumbling with mistaken theories and wasteful experiments and turn our national genius to ending the maladjustments which for a decade have retarded national growth."

"The only limit to progress in material wellbeing of our people is that set by man's own creative powers."
"The nation is ripe for a new leadership based on hope and progress. The public is sick of the depression, and is tired of looking backward. In the coming period, reforms will be tested by the criterion of whether they promote or reduce aggregate opportunities for employment and for production."
"In this coming period, honest and efficient business management will be honored for its social usefulness."

U.S. Prosperity Awaiting End Of Experiments

Special to Boston Evening American
MILWAUKEE, Feb. 7—Merryle Stanley Rukesyer of New York, economic commentator for the Hearst newspapers and International News Service, in a speech here today, declared that the raw materials are available in the United States for assembling the nation's greatest period of prosperity.

"Whether we achieve our possibilities for an upward surge in popular living standards," the economist declared in a speech before the Milwaukee Rotary Club, "depends on whether we stop fumbling with mistaken theories and wasteful experiments and turn our national genius to ending the maladjustments which for a decade have retarded national growth."

"The only limit to progress in material wellbeing of our people is that set by man's own creative powers."
"The nation is ripe for a new leadership based on hope and progress. The public is sick of the depression, and is tired of looking backward. In the coming period, reforms will be tested by the criterion of whether they promote or reduce aggregate opportunities for employment and for production."
"In this coming period, honest and efficient business management will be honored for its social usefulness."

$10,000.00 1ST PRIZE

and 99 Other Cash Awards Will Be Paid by the BOSTON RECORD and AMERICAN

REBUS GAME Starts Monday!

BEGINNING with next Monday's issues, the Boston American and Daily Record will present a fascinating, new game for everyone to enjoy... an intriguing game of skill that carries with it an opportunity for you to win as much as $10,000.00 Cash! Yes, that's the amount of the great First Prize—then there's a Second Prize of $2,000.00—a Third Prize of $1,000.00—and 97 other generous cash awards!

This new contest, known as the Rebus Game, will consist of a collection of fascinating puzzles like the one you see on this page... puzzles that are thoroughly intriguing and which, in addition, have a novel, humorous twist.

Look at the SAMPLE PUZZLE. Note that it contains a variety of clues which you add and subtract as directed... and which are accompanied by amusing and helpful hints supplied by comic characters sketched around the puzzle.

You will agree that here indeed is a fine way to win $10,000.00, or any other of the 100 cash prizes that must be won!

100 CASH PRIZES!
FIRST PRIZE ...	$10,000.00
SECOND PRIZE	$2,000.00
THIRD PRIZE	$1,000.00
Fourth Prize	$500.00
Fifth Prize	$350.00
Sixth Prize	$250.00
Seventh Prize	$150.00
Eighth Prize	$100.00
Ninth Prize	$100.00
Tenth Prize	$100.00
Ninety Prizes at $5.00 each ..	$450.00

Here's the Idea of the Contest:

(THIS IS A SAMPLE PUZZLE)

IF I WIN FIRST PRIZE I'LL BLOW THIS OFF THE TOWN!

IT'S A THREE LETTER WORD, AND IT'S AN EYE-OPENER!

T +

-  + D

= L I D

IT MAY BE A HAT TO YOU, BUT TO ME IT'S ONLY THE COVERING FOR A POT!

CAN YOU TELL WHAT 3-LETTERWORD THIS PUZZLE REPRESENTS?

The way you solve this puzzle is to add and subtract the letters given and the letters in the names of the objects pictured. For example, in this SAMPLE PUZZLE, you take the letter "T" and add LION—giving you T L I O N. From that you subtract TON (which is represented by a weight marked 2,000 pounds). That, of course, gives you the word LID—which answer we've already sketched in, because this is just a SAMPLE puzzle. If you read the "hints" supplied by the comic characters surrounding the puzzle, you'll see readily enough that LID is without question the correct solution. Get the idea?

"MORE SCIENTIFIC THAN BRIDGE..."

says

ELI CULBERTSON

World's Foremost Authority On Games

"... there's no luck or chance in a Rebus Puzzle... it's all Skill! To my way of thinking, the Rebus Game is more scientific than Bridge, because there's no guess-work at all in a Rebus Puzzle. As a contest, the Rebus Game is nothing less than a Grand Slam."

NO LETTERS TO WRITE! NEATNESS DOESN'T COUNT! No Subscriptions Are Required!

Here is a contest in which no special training or talent will be required. Fancy decorations and neatness of submissions will not count. There will be no essays to compose and so slogans to think up. Prizes will be awarded solely on the basis of the correctness of your solutions to the puzzles, which you submit in accordance with the rules. No subscriptions required! No canvassing to do! Watch for the first official puzzle which will appear next Monday together with the complete rules.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

MOST KIDS, even those born in snooty private hospitals with a silver spoon in one hand and a social register in the other, want to be firemen when they grow up.

A few of our erstwhile firemen—now grown up to be sophisticated members of the younger set—experienced the long delayed thrill of riding on the bright red engine and clanging the bell last week . . . all in a very safe and sane manner, of course . . . No chance of getting burned for the engine wasn't going to a fire—just round and round the city to advertise the Community Fund Campaign.

These amateur smoke eaters had a chance to renew their acquaintance with Boston's professional firemen last evening as the Firemen's Band was one of the feature entertainments at the campaign's mammoth victory dinner at the Statler.

Alice Jaques, Laura Robbins, Charlie Devens, Charlie Stockton and members of their gang who rode the hook and ladder, were all on hand to give the firemen a big hand . . . Alice even entered into the spirit of the occasion by wearing a fireman's red velvet dress printed with a fine black stripe.

AMABEL ESHLEMAN and Nancy Vogel, who were guests at the large ushers' dinner preceding Joan Curtis' debut dance at the Country Club last evening, are shown chatting with friends at a recent tea for Morning Musicales ushers. Their next opportunity to usher at these fashionable concerts will be on Valentine's Day.

Chairman Francis C. Gray's announcement that the drive had gone over the top was greeted with a typical New Year's Eve din . . . rattling noisemakers, bursting balloons and loud cheers . . . Adding their share to the ovation were over a thousand campaign workers from Boston and suburban areas who had redoubled their efforts in the final stages of the drive to reach the goal of $4,623,000.

While her husband, Robert Hallowell, sat at the head table with other executives of the drive, Mrs. Hallowell dined with friends at a nearby table . . . Her simple black dress was trimmed with white embroidered collar and cuffs and her large hat adorned with colorful feathers . . . Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goodrich attended with Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Weed . . . and Mrs. Frederick Church and her brother, Bill Boardman, stopped for a chat with Art Berger, director of the Boys Clubs of Boston of which Mr. Church is president. . . Aggie made her usual chic appearance in a slim gray wool dress and matching hat adorned with green streamers.

Kay Baker of Belmont, who will be an April bride, wore a festive hat of green and red feathers with a black snood, to brighten her simple black dress, and Newton and Weston campaign workers present included Mrs. James T. Mountz, Barbara Eaton Sykes and Eleanor Hall.

Bill Read, being teased by friends about the difficulty he had in transporting a full sized harp from Symphony Hall to a radio station for a broadcast in the interests of the campaign Sunday, sported a pink carnation boutonniere . . . and Bill Chamberlain was also festive with a small bunch of flowers added to the red feather tucked in his lapel.

Cully Aldrich, Charlotte Rantoul, Rachel Warner, Mrs. Barbara Wendell Soule, Harley Parker, Harry Fessenden, the Louis McLennans (the attractive Sally wearing gray spats with leopard skin cuffs), Bella Grandin, Mr. and Mrs. Tim Russell, the James Lawrences and Virginia Richmond with other members of the younger set present.

You Can Be Beautiful

Once a Year Bargain

By ARLINE GOULD

FOR ALL YOU GIRLS who suffer from a dry, flaky skin in the winter days of overheated apartments . . . all you women whose skin is no longer youthfully soft and moist . . . here is a beauty margin that happens only once a year . . . or less.

You may remember that a year ago I wrote of a grand cream, especially effective for turkey-skin necks and lines around the eyes, as well as for general dryness, that was being sold, for a limited time, for away less than half its regular price.

The response to that announcement was tremendous. Over 500 readers, as well as hundreds of regular users, stormed the beauty department of the store that carried this cream that is the pride of a famous house.

Well, the manufacturer has done it again this year. The jar of this velvety smooth cream, full of softening oils, that usually costs $3.50 is being offered on a special limited time sale for only a dollar.

This lovely stuff is pale pink, yummy-looking and lovely to feel in your fingers. It is delicately scented and expensively made, and what is more to the point it really works wonders with a tired, dry skin. You know how maddening it is to put powder on and have it adhere in patches . . . well, that's a warning to you that you'd better quick get busy with a good restorative ointment!

We can't do more than rave about it, and tell you that you can get it for less than one-third of its price. But we know you will be grateful for the tip if you take it! Arline Gould will tell you which Boston beauty saloon has this special bargain, and the famous name it bears, if you call her at Liberty 4000 any week-day except Saturday, before five; or write, enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope, to her at the Boston American.

Society Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harlow of Boston and Duxbury announce the engagement of their post debutante daughter, Helene D. Harlow, to George W. Morse, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. George Morse of Brookline.

Mrs. Harlow attended the Woodward School and May School in Boston and was a debutante in the winter of 1937-38. Mr. Morse attended Rivers School and graduated from Williams in 1938.

Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, co-chairman of the N. E. branch of American Friends of France, will speak in Ipswich tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of the Mass. Federation of Taxpayers. Mrs. Walter H. Hulbert of Red Top Farm, Ipswich, will preside at the meeting.

Bostonians journeying in New York this week include Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, former Gov. and Mrs. Joseph Ely, Mrs. Henry L. Mason and Miss Katherine Endicott. Guests at the Warwick Hotel include Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Jule Allen, who departed recently for their home in Toronto.

A fashionable luncheon trio lunching together at the Miami Jockey Club this week included Lady Jay-Smith of London, stunning in a pastel costume accented by a red cart-wheel hat; Mrs. Eva Powell of New York and Mrs. William L. Birely of Brookline.

Arboretum's Birthday Party

Arboretum Club's 10th birthday party in the Copley-Plaza's Sheraton Room was one of the gayest of the present season.

Norma Freeman, chairman of the gala dinner dance, presented the president, Mrs. Edward Abbott, a bouquet of red roses on behalf of the club members. Miss Freeman's full-skirted white gown was trimmed with gold sequins . . . gaudies with Mrs. Abbott's bright red satin.

Helene Murray's black crepe dinner dress was adorned with glittering blue and green sequins . . . Mrs. Edward Deveney was attractive in wine lace . . . Mrs. Raymond Connolly wore a modish frock of dull black crepe and Mrs. Lawrence Connolly was in deep ivory satin . . . shiny gold snood over her dark hair.

Mrs. Larry McHugh's sapphire blue crepe was sashed in cerise . . . full-skirted white tulle on Miss Julia Hourihan . . . orchid corsage with Mrs. James McElgin's pink chiffon . . . Mrs. Patrick Bealey, old rose taffeta, Mrs. Edward McGowan, rose beige lace; Mrs. Harold Allen, pastel blue satin trimmed in gold; Helen McGillicuddy, black crepe; Mrs. Arthur Woods, American beauty taffeta and Mrs. G. Frank McDonald in dusty pink taffeta.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother probably used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it. It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it. Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This makes a full pint of truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a fairly long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold promptly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable ginseng, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

CABBAGE WITH MUSTARD BUTTER SAUCE
(Tested by Good Housekeeping Institute)
Use Institute-approved measuring cups and spoons. Measure level.

INGREDIENTS
2-lb. head of cabbage
1 cup, powdered or prepared mustard
1 cup, granulated sugar
½ cup, salt
2 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tsp. lemon juice

METHOD OF PREPARATION
Shred the cabbage and cook in boiling water until just tender—3 to 15 min.; drain. Meanwhile mix the mustard, sugar and salt with the butter in a saucepan. Heat slowly, stirring constantly. When it is smooth, stir in the lemon juice. Pour over the cabbage, mix with a fork; then serve. Serves 6.

To serve 3 or 4, make half this recipe. Menu suggestion: Serve with sliced corned beef, fried potatoes, bread, and chocolate pudding.

Smart Set Fashions

Accessories Important

By ANNICE BRINK
IF SOMEONE ASKED me to give one single bit of advice on the problem of clothes and budget, and I couldn't give any additional tips, here is the choice:

"Never skimp on your accessories. They make or mar your costume."

Now is the time when we linger before shop windows and do mental arithmetic. Just how much can I afford to pay for my Spring outfit . . . can I get a smart print to finish out these winter days . . . do I dare to buy that adorable hat and build around it . . . these are the problems that get women to mumbering on sidewalks.

Every girl knows pretty well what she can afford to spend. But too many of them really over-extend themselves on the suit or coat, and then are unfair to it by getting haphazard accessories.

This season you can do wonders, for instance, with the new jewelry. The Egyptian and Oriental pieces are grand . . . great lumpy pins and necklaces, the latter often strung on three or four heavy gold strands. A simple black frock, a really smart hat, and jewelry that is unusual, and you look "in the money."

Gloves can give you a look of elegance, too. This season we are going to see lots of rich-looking, hand-sewn gloves, like the ones in the illustration today. You could do a lot for your costume by getting a stunning bag, with matching gloves, in one of the new reds or blues . . . and the classic white doeskin somehow always marks you as a lady of good taste and discrimination.

The important thing about accessories is that they are just that. They should be bought in relation to the things with which they are to be worn. Those tacky-looking women who never seem to assemble one smart outfit, no matter what they spend, are the ones who buy something just because it's "cute."

Your bag should harmonize with the new Spring outfit and also with whatever frocks you have on hand and will continue to wear. That is, unless you have several, to go with your several ensembles. Hankies are coming into the spotlight. Large squares, printed in floral or amusing designs, will be carried or tucked into pockets. Very new is the idea of pinning your decorative kerchief to your bosom pocket, a la Godey's Lady Book children.

WHETHER SHE HAS HER MONEY on the right hoof or not, the young lady at the track, pictured above, hasn't gone wrong on any fashions tips. Note particularly that she has set off her smart navy costume suit with a striking plaid blouse—probably red, white and blue—and navy sports hat, with beautiful four-button length hand-sewn doeskin gloves. Nothing is smarter or sets a costume off to better advantage than impeccable white gloves . . . and they will be very smart this spring. Naturally, you will be sure you get the kind that wash like a handkerchief . . . and never wear them except when they are spotless.

Love and Marriage

Love Can Work Miracles

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Do you really believe in love?

Are you convinced that it is a worker of miracles, that it can transform lives, that it can create happiness and health where otherwise there would be sickness and despair?

Whether you believe it or not, such is the truth. And if you have the faintest shred of skepticism, let me tell you the story of Miss Jessie Simpson, of Teaneck, N. J., who, since her wedding the other day—a church wedding—Miss Jim Steward of Hackensack.

A TRAGIC ACCIDENT

Mrs. Steward is an unusually pretty, attractive and capable young woman. Mr. Steward, a college graduate, is following a successful career as an advertising man. The two have known each other for several years and though I am not, of course, in their confidence, I should say that they must have been deeply in love from the beginning. There seemed every reason to believe that, at the end of their short engagement they would have a brilliantly happy married life. Then came a tragic accident. Miss Simpson fell under a railroad train and was so badly injured that it was necessary to amputate both legs. Onlookers took it for granted that the lovely young girl's life was ruined, her romance shattered.

But the onlookers reckoned without love. And they forgot courage, too. And loyalty. And faith.

So love, the love that these two had for each other, pulled Jessie Simpson out of the hospital, freed her from the danger of a negative, wheeled-chair existence, brought her back, miraculous as it may seem, to a complete, normal and thoroughly happy life.

Walk? Why, of course she can. And dance, too, if you can believe me. And enjoys nothing more than a round of golf. Also, it goes without saying that she drives a car.

The accident happened in 1937.

BUSINESS SUCCESS

Since then, fortified by her own courage and by the devotion of her fiancé, Miss Simpson acquired the physical freedom I have indicated. She started a beauty shop. From the beginning it was a success and a great joy to its proprietor. She is going to keep right on with it, now that she is Mrs. Steward. She plans to do all her own housework, prepare all the meals. I'm sure she is an excellent cook. "I can do anything that anybody does," she says.

What do you think of love as a miracle-worker?

Substitutes for Meat

By MANTHA LEE

SUBSTITUTES for meat are in demand at all times. During the fast days of the Lenten season the problem of balanced, appetizing, satisfying meals sometimes becomes a serious one. Here are some recipes with a choice of fish, eggs, vegetables or cheese to suit your needs and taste.

These dishes compare favorably with meat in food value and flavor. There is a trick or finishing touch in them that keeps them from being ordinary. Such recipes quickly become favorites and appear in many homes time again by request.

UPSIDE-DOWN VEGETABLE CAKE

2 cups mashed potatoes
3 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup shortening
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup milk
4 cups mixed vegetables (carrots, peas, celery, lima beans)

1/4 cup vegetable stock
2 tbsp. butter
Mushroom sauce

Mix and sift dry ingredients cut in shortening. Combine egg and milk; add to dry ingredients, stirring until mixed. Arrange hot seasoned vegetables in bottom of greased shallow baking pan, add vegetable stock, cover with butter and bake in hot oven (425 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Turn out on hot serving plate with vegetables on top and serve with mushroom sauce. Make 6 servings.

MUSHROOM SAUCE

2 tbsp. butter or fat
3 tsp. flour
1 doz. medium-sized mushrooms, or
1/4 cup whole button mushrooms
1 cup beef stock
1/4 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper

Melt butter, saute mushrooms, adding few drops of Worcester-hire sauce; stir in flour and cook until browned, stirring constantly. Gradually add stock, stirring until mixture boils and thickens, then cook about three minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Add seasoning. Canned beef bouillon or 1 cup mutton and 1 beef bouillon cube or 2 teaspoons beef extract may be substituted for beef stock, if desired. Makes 2 cup sauce.

CONVENT PIE

To cheese sauce add chopped green pepper, parsley and onion. Place cooked macaroni in shallow buttered baking dish and cover with sauce. Top with buttered cereal flakes and bake in a moderate oven (400 deg. F.) about 20 minutes, or until heated through.

CORNMEAL

1/2 cup sifted flour
1 1/2 cups yellow cornmeal
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 1/2 cups milk
1/4 cup shortening, melted.

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Combine eggs and milk, and add to flour mixture, stirring until well mixed; stir in shortening. Turn into greased, shallow pan 8x12 inches, and bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Sugar may be omitted if desired. Makes 8 (4-inch) squares.

CHEESE SAUCE

2 tbsp. butter
1 1/2 tbsp. flour
1/2 tsp. salt

Melt butter, stir in flour and salt, mix and add dry ingredients.

Combine eggs and milk, and add to flour mixture, stirring until well mixed; stir in shortening. Turn into greased, shallow pan 8x12 inches, and bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 30 minutes. Sugar may be omitted if desired. Makes 8 (4-inch) squares.

BURGUNDY CHERRY
ICE CREAM
It's the February Special

1/2 tsp. paprika
1/2 tsp. pepper
1 1/2 cups milk
1 lb. cheese (cut into small pieces or grated)
Mix butter in double boiler; add flour and seasonings and blend well. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Continue to cook in double boiler about ten minutes longer, stirring as necessary to prevent lumping. Add cheese, and heat with a whisk or egg beater until cheese is melted. Add salt. Sauce is smooth. Serve immediately.

SALMON SHORTCAKE

Split squares of hot crisp cornbread, butter lightly and cover with creamed salmon. Other creamed fish may be used. Left over cornbread may be used if it is moist and toasted just before serving.

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By LOUIS
DAVIDSON

MILLIE VAUGHAN looked up from the crock of biscuit dough she was kneading expertly and rapidly. Her cheeks flushed as she gestured with her shoulder towards the front door from which came a loud whistling, a slam and the quick tread of masculine feet, the owner of which was sending ahead of him a cheery "Hello, Honeybunch."

"There's Lester now, his eyes alone, as three years of married life had not yet dimmed the sudden throb of joy in her in-out and quiver at her heart when she heard him coming. Lester's mother, who was comfortably rocking in the little kitchen "cozy chair," nodded understandingly. "From the time he was old enough to go out and play," her tone was fond, "you could hear him coming into the house as soon as he hit the front porch. I always said he was trying to scare away any intruders who might be lurking in the hall or under the sidewalk. Playing Indian," he called it. But it's just one of his habits."

As she finished, Lester had reached the kitchen. "Hello, Mother," he lifted her out of the chair and gave her a rough hug. "Dropping in to supper so you can see if your boy is starved? You should know Millie better than that by now, Mother," and he tried to look solemn. "I don't know what you're going to say to this. But Millie is every bit as good a cook as you ever were. And what do you think of that?"

"I think that I am gladder every day in my boy's happiness," she settled herself back in the chair. "I haven't even been helping Millie. She wouldn't let me."

By this time Millie had received the roughly tender smile Lester held especially for her, as he never yet had come to the "dilly kass" stage.

"Hurry and get washed," she suggested, "the biscuits will be done then. Everything else is ready." But Lester was digging into his pocket.

"Here, look," he was saying. "I found the greatest potato peeler thing, something about 'have attention.' It peels in half the time and half the trouble and doesn't get a lot of the good part of the potato, or something."

MOTHER'S STORY

Millie stopped short in her kneading. "Now, Lester," she shook her head and turned to his mother. "He drives me almost crazy bringing home gadgets. Just as long as you can get a trick what-it that gives you twice as much work as any ordinary way of doing things, Lester thinks it's great. Why, our house is half full of all these things. You simply must," she turned to him again, a little frown creasing her smooth forehead. "You shouldn't waste your money, I'm an old-fashioned housekeeper and these things only worry me."

Lester was crestfallen. He turned the little affair over and over in his hand, then laid it down. "I just like these funny little things," he acknowledged. "Maybe I should have been an inventor instead of in a law office. I get a lot of fun out of them." But Millie didn't smile.

"If you had to try to work with them it wouldn't be so funny. What would you think if I brought trick ink-wells and funny pencils and upside down blotters and things like that to your office? I hate to kick, but, after all Lester—"

"All right," he rubbed her nose with his affectionately and started were the days in which we had carpets not rugs," she explained. "And what work it was to stretch them well into the corners and along the walls. I'm rather glad those days are gone forever. You wives of today can't realize the comforts and conveniences you have."

"In those days, there weren't so many demonstrators in stores and they always drew a crowd. Somehow Philip simply could not resist them. And, when something he brought home didn't work right, it was pathetic to see his puzzled face. 'Why, the girl in the store worked it,' he would explain. 'He was like you, Millie—I would get impatient, partly because I thought the quarters and half-dollars he spent for what were to me useless trifles, could have been put to better use. But I learned—my dear—oh, I learned, and that's the story."

"We were saving money to buy our house, the one I still have. 'It wasn't any easier to save money then than it is now. We did without many things we wanted."

yet) that really provoked me. It cost $2 and I couldn't see where it was worth it. He acknowledged that it was not the usefulness of the article so much as its unusual features which prompted him to buy it. We rarely had words, but we did have words about that. But, as we always did, we forgot the slight storm in a day. That was one good feature he had. . . we could quarrel quickly, but just as quickly we were over it."

"We went to the bank and drew out the money. To please Philip, seeing that the storm was over, I took along his latest investment. At the bank we drew out the $3000 we were paying down, and we took the street car into the city. We were living in a village on the outskirts of town, but a suburban line gave us good accommodation."

"There was a circus in town that day and the car was crowded. When we got to town the streets were lined with people waiting for $3000 would have gone.

"Of course I screamed and held on for dear life. Philip was quick-witted and he grabbed the man, too. A policeman came and we all went to the station house. The man was well-known to the police. Like a lot of his ilk, he had come into the city for the circus, knowing that there might be many women, just as foolish as I was, carrying money in a bag."

THIRK SALVATION

"Well, we got to the real estate man all right and paid our money and got the papers which assured us a home for all our lives. And that night, I cooked Philip the very best dinner I think he ever had and I promised that, as long as he wanted to bring home funny little things, I never again would say a word. You see, this time he had brought me a handbag, made like those foreign cigarette boxes—it played a little tune when you opened it. It was a silly, useless sort of thing, but it saved our home for us. Now, my dear, I don't imagine that anything Lester ever will bring home as wise and as important as that, but he loves as sweetly as you teach me? I'll remember. Now for supper." She went to the stairs. "Lester, we're ready," she called. When he came storming down the stairs in his usual, impetuous fashion, for no reason in the world she caught his coat, drew him down and kissed his cheek. "That's just for your being late," she explained to his amazed delight.

And he fairly beamed when the strawberries came on for dessert. "You have yourself to thank for these," Millie told him. "I hurried my finger and I don't think I ever would have been able to hull these if it hadn't been for the strawberry huller you brought home last week. I hunted it up and it worked like magic. Maybe I'm a bit wrong about gadgets. I know how handy this one is. After all, darling, they say women are not inventive, that men have invented most of the conveniences women use, the sewing-machine, the washer, oh, a lot of things. So, perhaps a man has a little idea of what he needs around a house, even the kitchen."

She wrinkled up her nose in the crinkly little smile he loved. He rose swiftly, came to her side and lifted her face to his. "Excuse us, Mother," he apologized, "but," he whispered in Millie's ear, just before he kissed her, "this is just for your being you."

out. "I'll be ready in ten minutes," he warned, "and I'm hungry enough to eat the tablecloth." His mother waited until she was sure he was out of hearing, then she came over to Millie. "May I tell you a little story?" her voice was tender. Millie's frown cleared. "Of course, Mother," she said, "if you don't mind my keeping on with the supper."

"I suppose," Lester's mother mused, "it isn't possible that habits are inherited. Probably the reason they sometimes seem to be is that a child unconsciously mimics its parents. But it is curious that Lester's father, had the very same trend toward little oddities. My oh my," she laughed as she rocked. "I have skinned my fingers on patent graters, and once I almost had nervous prostration trying to drive tracks in the carpet with a sort of magnetic hammer—those

I made over dresses and Philip smoked a pipe instead of cigars. But, finally, we had the amount for a substantial down payment. We wanted to pay all we could down, so there would not be too much of a debt on us."

Millie was putting the biscuits in the oven. "Lester is a lot like that," she nodded approvingly. "Installment houses would have short shrift if they depended on him. He isn't stingy, but he will leave money in the bank and let it draw interest until he has enough to buy what we need. . . ."

THE GREAT DAY!

"Finally," the mother-in-law resumed, "the great day came. We went to go to the real estate company and pay down what we had decided was the right amount. Philip had brought me home an oddity (I won't tell you what it is the parade. We had quite a time getting through them. And it was while we were standing at a corner, watching for the traffic light to change that it happened."

"I had my handbag on my arm. I had had it tucked under my arm, but the crowd had jostled me so it had slipped down. We had decided that I would carry the money. Oh, I know we could have got a bank check, and it would have been the most sensible thing to do, but we got such a thrill out of having the actual money in our hands, that we wanted to put the payment down in cash."

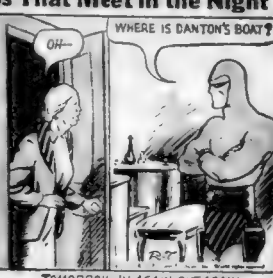

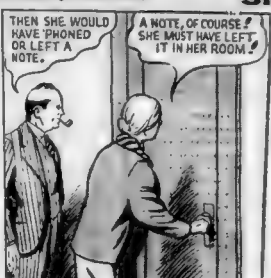

"At at once, we heard music—just a faint tinkling. At first I could not tell where it came from. Then I remembered. I clutched the handbag—and caught the hand of a pickpocket at the same time. He just had reached into the bag and, in another second, our whole

Kids vs. Contractors: Municipal Stadium

ALL MY FELLOW WORD-HUCKSTERS HAVE TAKEN an editorial lick at the proposed Municipal Stadium, to be financed from the long suffering George Robert White Fund, and in case you weren't listin' the White Fund is a six million dollar legacy left for civic improvements. So here is my two cents worth!

AUSTEN LAKE

The history of Municipal stadiums has been one of grand and glorious flops. Two of the most embarrassing monuments to goofy civic ambition are the Sesqui-Centennial Stadium at Philadelphia and the Cleveland Municipal Stadium, which seat 125,000 and 110,000 respectively and now rear their high walls against the sky as the wintry wind moans through their tunnels, the pigeons coo in their grill work and last autumn's peanut shucks and rubbish frik along their slopes.

The Philadelphia dimple was filled a few times—once when Gene Tunney jostled Jack Dempsey's heavyweight title loose and several times when the Army football team played Navy. But at all other times it has served as a noble sample of futile enthusiasm by the go-get-em type of promoters and public officials.

The Cleveland Stadium was foisted on the mass of taxpayers by prominent and aggressive groups of business men who wished to sweeten the value of their land holdings in the neighborhood of the site. But it was a bust for baseball and the Cleveland Indians, who shared in the undertaking, have long since abandoned its lease and gone back to its old-fashioned ball yard at Dunn Field—a $1.25 taxi fare from the business center. The trouble with the Cleveland crater was that crowds of 4000 or 6000, a profit-taking load in a ball park, were scattered and lonesome in the immense space. The baseball fan doesn't like to feel scattered and lonesome.

Randall Island and Roosevelt Speedway

THEN THERE IS THE RANDALL ISLAND STADIUM, a PWA project surrounded by costly ramps, skyways and rotary highways, all buttressed expensively with green-faced granite and the whole rented by New York for occasional track meets or gypsy games from which, during the last three years, it has failed to pay the janitor service. The excuse for building it was to provide unemployed men with occupation at a small wage, but the cost-sheet shows that the workers got the crusts and the contractors the gravy. And today if you pass by its interminable airways you will overlook an aching oval of emptiness where the gulls scream and the ground moles burrow—a useless center as the Madison Square Garden's fight bowl on Long Island which the 400 millionaires raised in the era of wonderful nonsense. That, too, is being left to the elements.

Then there is Soldier Field in Chicago, an immense concrete mausoleum which usually gazes at the sky, and the Roosevelt Speedway outside New York, where the thistle and witch grass grow between the bricks. Both have been financial ulcers to their owners and their box office statistics give clear and mournful proof that these facilities are more than sufficient to meet the demand. The stadium sponsors, including public officials and predatory high-pressure promoters have built far into the future.

Give Our Urchins the Benefit

THE CITY OF BOSTON HAS A HEEL OF THE original White Fund to spend and nothing itches the fingers of the political craft so much as some loose funds waiting for frittering and a wide latitude in the terms of how it shall be frittered. Since its bequest it has been a source of quarreling, bickering and cross-calumnies which, if the late

BRUINS SMASH RANGERS WITH ICE K. O. TACTICS

By BILL GRIMES

Discarding the parlor brand of hockey which had failed to produce a victory in five starts against the N. H. L. pacemakers, the Bruins waded into Rangers last night at the Boston Garden bodingy checking, clashing and fighting their way to a 6 to 2 win before 16,314 cash customers, who were completely exhausted when the final whistle blew.

It was one of the most thrilling games ever played in the N. H. L. The Bruins entered the game in a fighting mood. They had been beaten four straight games by the Blue Shirts and all they had on the credit side of the ledger was one point awarded for the 2-2 tie in the opening game.

COWLEY SCORING STAR

Bill Cowley was the scoring star, with two great goals, but Capt. "Dit" Clapper was the Ranger nemesis. He sparked the Bruins as they've never been sparked. And, he flattened more Rangers than Carter has pills. He operated on the real tough ones, such as Art Coulter, Muss Patrick and Phil Watson but he took off at every-one within reach.

Although he was playing with a broken thumb, Capt. Clapper was in two fights with Art Coulter. The first encounter was nothing more or less than a skirmish but the main bout was a dilly.

About half way through the first period Clapper and Coulter collided in center ice. The Bruins' leader was sent to the box for charging. "Dit" protested and, of course, Coulter stuck his nose into the argument and they clashed but no serious damage resulted.

TWO RINGS GOING

White Clapper and Coulter were scrambling around, Jack Shewchuk and Bryan Hestall went into action right in front of the Bruin bench but Referee Lamport was to busy trying to separate Clapper and Coulter and apparently didn't see what was going on in the other ring.

Late in the final period, while Rangers were putting on a power play, Clapper broke out of his own zone with no one to beat but Dave Kerr. Coulter went after Clapper and when within swinging distance cut loose with his stick at the Bruin captain's arms. He was laying the wood on mercilessly and finally Clapper let the puck go swung his stick at the ice and then set after Coulter. They both went into action on this occasion and "Dit" got in a couple of solid punches before peace was declared. "Dit" Clapper has turned in some great performances in the past but he was at his peak last night. And, his playing inspired the Bruins to such an extent that they actually outclassed Rangers, who are rated as the greatest of all time clubs.

MISSED MANY MORE

Referee Lamport had his trouble trying to keep law and order. Although he handed out three major, one misconduct and eight minor penalties, Lamport missed more than he called. Dave Kerr, the Ranger goalie, could, and should have been sent off three times, for slugging Bill Cowley and Bobby Bauer and stiff attacking Roy Conacher. But, he played 60 minutes.

Bill Cowley scored the first and second Bruin goals on plays that will not be duplicated for a long, long time. In the first period, he went in with Roy Conacher as a decoy. At the Ranger defense, which had backed up, Bill asked a pass to Conacher as the lanky wing split Pratt and Heller. Pratt was drawn out of position and Cowley went in and back handed a low shot into the cage, amid the greatest demonstration of screaming and cheering heard in the Garden this season.

ERNA ANDERSEN

Bill Cowley practically duplicated that performance in the second period, putting the Rossmen two goals up. Then, Red Hamill, on a three-man attack with Art Jackson and Herb Cain, produced the third tally which cinched the verdict. However, in the final stanza, Herb Cain assisted by Art Jackson and Eddie Wiseman beat Kerr, and before the end the Krauts strutted their stuff, for Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt tallied.

Frankie Brimsek had the Rangers shut out into 12:48 in the third period, when the Colvilles and Shickley counted and then while Clapper and Coulter were serving their major penalties, Alf Pike scored on a play which Lynn Patrick set up.

Norse Elf Plans Own Ice Show

By HERB FINNEGAN

Boston will see a third major figure skating production in 1941 if Uncle Sam permits Erna Andersen to stay here another year. The svelte Norse elfin, who dazzled 11,000 spectators at the American-Record Silver Skates Derby last Sunday at the Garden, will form her own company and produce a musical comedy on ice if plans materialize.

Erna, an accomplished "sheer" and speed skater, had been toying with the idea of exhibiting all three talents in her show but finds it impractical, she revealed today before leaving to continue her U. S. and Canadian tour.

"Anyway, I love music," she opines.

It is safe to say that if Uncle Sam gives Erna the go-ahead — and he probably will, seeing how eager she is to aid the Finns—Boston will see an ice extravaganza second to none. For not only can she skate, but she had that old S. A. that makes Sonja Henie the best office attraction in the entertainment world.

BOTH BORN IN OSLO

Erna and Sonja were both born in Oslo, and both are the same age. But whereas Sonja gave her life to skating, Erna continued with her schooling "shee-ing" and didn't get the publicity the "Golden Girl" received.

However, she became proficient enough on the silver blades to qualify for Norway's 1936 Olympic team, but she passed that up for the old do-re-mi and accepted the lead in a British skating production.

She became the most sought after exhibitionist in Europe and would still be there if it were not for the war.

"It's terrible," she sobbed. "Only yesterday, I get letter telling me my brother Christian, he's joined the Finnish 'Ghost Troops.' He's only 21, too. 'But he's a fine sheer-er,' she beamed.

Erna was in a dither Sunday afternoon at the Garden. The ice was cut up from the 625 speed skaters. The music was foreign to her.

She cried like an infant in her dressing room after her first appearance in which she did a stumma.

She thought she had done poorly, and only the repeated demands for an encore could convince her otherwise. For a professional, she certainly has that old college spirit. She has remained in Boston for a couple of days to work with Ed Scholdan, Viennese instructor at the Arena.

"He's wonderful," she cried.

ANGEL FLIES AT RUDY IN ARENA MAT CLASH

That good old "Angel," who lived up to his cognomen by bringing plenty of cash into Paul Bowser's coffers two weeks ago at the Arena, returns to the same ring tonight to tangle with Rudy Dusek in one of the two main bouts on Pap Paul's weekly wrestling card at the St. Botolph st. emporium.

In the co-feature, champion Steve Casey of Ireland will duel with Leo Le Febvre, French-Canadian from Montreal.

The Angel's grotesque features have proved to be a fine drawing card, and some new life has been injected into the game.

The oldest of the Duseks, a past master at the grunt and groan art, will make it a merry evening with the Angel and his bear hug.

Rudy is expected to give the customers a good time on the wrestling ability of the Angel, who won easily in his first bout here (Each two falls in three)

Louis' Rival at 203 Finishes Training

SUMMIT, N. J., Feb. 7 (AP)—Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavyweight, concluded his training for Friday's 15-round championship bout with Joe Louis today by boxing four rounds against Jimmy Johnson of New York.

This brought Godoy's total of sparring to 110 rounds. He weighed 203 pounds after the workout, and Dr. William Walker, who examined him for the New York Athletic Commission, said he was "in great shape."

Amerks Lose Despite Goal By Eddie Shore

By the Associated Press
The National Hockey League title race is closer than ever, if that is possible.

The Bruins broke the spell of the league-leading Rangers by beating the Blue Shirts, 6-2. It was the first time they had been able to whip the New Yorkers in six tries.

And in the other game, the fast-flying Red Wings kept on the victory trail with a smashing 3-1 defeat of the Americans. It was the Wings' seventh straight game without defeat. But it was more than a Detroit victory. It was a crushing blow to the Americans, who saw the spell cast by the great Eddie Shore broken.

Eddie was in there for the Amerks, but they went down to defeat nevertheless. That was a shock, since the fabulous star twice had led the Amerks to victory since joining the club last week.

A pair of third-period goals led to the Amerks' downfall. Eddie Goodfellow and Sid Howe broke a 1-1 deadlock—and the Amerks' hearts.

The lone New York goal was scored by Shore, his first since he left the Boston Bruins, where he starred 13 seasons.

APPROVE TITLE FIGHT

Contract Proves Problem to Suhr

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7 (AP)—Gus Suhr and the Philadelphia National League baseball club have reached an impasse, the husky first baseman disclosed today. Suhr wanted his salary upped and the club notified him it couldn't afford it.

"They have treated me so nicely I don't know what to do about it," Suhr said. "I feel that I am worth a little more money than was offered, but at the same time I don't want to offend my bosses."

'I'll Knock Out Louis,' Says Defiant Godoy

By PAT ROBINSON
NEW YORK, Feb. 7 (INS)—"Nobody knocks out Godoy!"

Head erect, chest out and dark eyes flashing like those of the hero in an old-time melodrama, Senor Arturo Godoy, of the Chilean Godoy, thus put the crusher today on a suggestion that Joe Louis might flatten him in Madison Sq. Garden Friday night.

"No, sir," said the Chilean conquistador scornfully, "that Louis he won't even put Godoy on the floor. You bet on that and you win sure."

Nevertheless, the cold-blooded Broadway bookies are quoting 5 to 2 that Godoy won't answer the bell for the sixth round and 6 to 1 that he won't go the full 15 rounds.

20 TO 1 ON DECISION

No bookies is quoting odds on a decision but if anybody feels that Godoy can go the route and at the same time outbox the champion, that brave hombre may write his own odds to 20 to 1.

Ordinarily, such a betting situation would fill the sensitive soul of Promoter Mike Jacobs with untold anguish because it would denote an alarming lack of interest in the fight.

But Mike believes that Louis will draw another $100,000 gate if only because the fans love to watch the sheer artistry of the man as he goes about the job of sculpturing a new landscape on the map of his opponent.

Strangely enough, Senor Godoy himself has no intention of winning a decision over the dark destroyer.

"That Louis, he's one swell header," is the Senor's ungrudging tribute to the master of the fine art of scrambling ears. "Nobody beats him that way. But Godoy will knock him out sure."

Godoy merely laughs when anybody warns him about the dynamite that lies in Joe's iron fists, and quickly counters that Tony Galento put Louis on the floor, but couldn't even budge him (Godoy) in two fights.

Boston 'Y' Five To Play Brooklyn

The Boston Y. M. H. A. meets the Borough Park Y. M. H. A. of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the feature game of the weekly double-header at the Seaver st. gym Saturday night.

Outstanding on the visitors' five are Julius Brooks and "Heeny" Horlick, former captains and All-Scholastic from New Utrecht high school; Jules Palefsky, member of the New York World-Telegram Hall of Fame; Normie Levine, formerly of Franklin & Marshall College of Pennsylvania; Frank Sammarino, formerly of Manhattan College from and now of New York University.

A preliminary between Filene's of the Industrial League and the Y. M. H. A. Jewels will start the show at 7:45 p. m.

Tigers Turn Down Honolulu Camp

DETROIT, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers would not be interested in training at Honolulu, Walter O. (Spik) Briggs, Jr., vice-president and treasurer of the Detroit baseball company, said today when told that Hawaii would like to have a big league club in its midst.

Give-minded citizens of Honolulu were reported to have made inquiries on the West Coast regarding the attitude of the Tigers or "any major league team" toward training at Honolulu.

The Detroit team will train at Lakeland, Fla., for the seventh straight year, activities being scheduled to open on Feb. 25.

Sonja Presents Complete New Show

One of the main reasons why Sonja Henie's ice shows continue to break records is because the comely Norwegian muls is smart enough to give the public something new every year.

There were complaints that Best Fehrdard's "Ice Follies of 1939" were too much on the pattern of the "39 Follies. Yet the show broke all previous attendance records here. Sonja, however, won't take the same chance.

In the 1940 edition of her Hollywood Ice Revue which comes to the Garden for a run of five nights starting Feb. 14, Sonja will present many innovations.

Features are the Fairland number called the "Candy Shop" which replaces "Alice in Wonderland" of the 1939 Revue, and three complete ballets, the first ever produced on ice skates.

In addition, the revue will include a stirring military march number, a tango by Sonja and Stewart Eburn, a boogie-woogie number to hot stirring music, a Spanish fantasy using La Conga and a rumba, a fire drill number by the boys to Tschakowsky's Fifth Symphony and several specialty numbers.

"New snow fields to conquer!" That was our ski slogan as we set forth Saturday last to invade the slopes at Bridgton, Maine, for our initial venture on this terrain. Our week-end rendezvous was to be at the Christmas Tree Inn, of which we had received glowing accounts, and our own impressions of this winter haven far exceeded our expectations . . .

The approach to this Inn is picturesque and inspiring; long rows of pines like sentinels guard the Main lodge, mirrored in Highland lake. The White Mountain ranges on all sides fling a challenge to skies and skiers. Truly, this abode is a water color come to life in a frame of natural splendor; here is Paradise regained in a forest left wild, a maze of evergreens and white and yellow birches . . .

Mrs. Emma B. Kanaly, owner and manager, is a perfect hostess and grand sport, greeting all with a cherry smile. She devotes every minute to seeing that her guests are enjoying themselves and are happy. She is also one of the prime movers for developing winter sports in Maine . . . Incidentally, 14 bungalows adjoin the Inn and are most amiable.

A huge living room and inviting fireplace face the Main Lodge, and the interior and furniture are completely done in maple. Green Christmas trees adorn the white window curtains, while a large tree built of ice blocks faces the lake front, illuminated at night.

750-FOOT TOBOGGAN SLIDE

This spot offers the greatest number of facilities for guests that we have seen. There is a lighted skating rink; a curling rink, with curling stones imported from Scotland; a 750-foot toboggan slide with a tow; a volley ball and badminton court on the ice; ice boating and fishing; and, of course, ping pong, pool, music and numerous other activities for all.

Skiers may go to nearby Pleasant Mountain Ski Slope, a 350,000 WPA project, with its trails, tow, and 20 meter ski jump. The slope itself, surrounded by a sea of peaks, is one of the best in the state, wide, and steep at the top. It affords an escape from Cramore Mountain which is beginning to look like Revere Bench on Sundays.

A branch of the Otto Schneib American Ski School is at this development. The two instructors here are Clarence Kneeland and William Simonton, who also coach at Bridgton Academy.

STARTED BY JACK SPRATT Jack Spratt, manager of the ski slope and cabin, started the Pleasant Mt. Ski Club, which now has over 200 members, headed by Rayburn Riley, president. The club is a member of the U.S.E.A.S.A., and has a racing team . . .

Novel events, also originated by Mr. Spratt, are held Sunday afternoons on the hill. Besides a slalom for girls and an open race, there is an "Uphill Race," the winner receiving five dollars! A mad and mercy scramble ensues here, with "no holds barred!" You just start at the bottom and work, or herringbone, up! A combat between Finnish and Red ski patrols is also enacted.

Maine certainly has great possibilities for winter sports. The state should be exploited as a skiing site, and needs a lot more advertising. Many skiers are in a rut; they visit the same places every week-end. Try Maine terrain!

SLALOM SOLILOQUIES: Wendy Cram, 19-year-old junior at Woodstock High School, again statted the skiing world when he won the ninth annual Fisk trophy race from a field of 101 starters last Sunday on "Suicide Six" at Woodstock, Vt. He said it was "the toughest course he ever ran" over icy going.

The New Hampshire state slalom championship was captured by Allen Rodday at the Belknap Mountain area in Gifford, N. H., with Roger Peabody, U. N. H., in second place. Watch this FIRST lad! In our opinion he's going places on skis!

Schussing sensationally, 15-year-old Marilyn Shaw from Stowe, Vt., took top honors in the New Hampshire women's slalom championship at Plymouth, N. H. Betty Woolsey was second, and Marilyn's 13-year-old sister, Barbara Shaw, was third. Youth can't be swayed! . . . Although the University of New Hampshire toppled Dartmouth from its throne of skiing supremacy last week-end, the Big Green skiers may yet prove hard to beat in their own carnival at Hanover, N. H., this coming Friday and Saturday. The meet should be wide open and replete with thrills . . .

SKI SCHOOL SCOOPS: Comes a missive from OSCAR CYR in Woodstock, Vt., stating that his Ski School there has been conducting four classes a day. Oscar's chief assistant is Fritz Muller, but a month from Adelboden in Switzerland. Henry Fling of Boston, certified recently, complete this expert staff . . .

Don Holton is running a series of open slalom races in the Newfound Region on Sundays of this month in conjunction with his Ski School. There will not be a race on February 18th, however, the date of the Region's Downhill Race for club teams on the Alexandria trail of Mt. Cardigan . . .

Schussers, Attention! Can you break Harold Odding's terrific record of 35.8 seconds for "Suicide Six" and win the "Gold 6?" . . . Bunny Bertram has announced that in the men's division, a "silver 6" will be awarded to one minute schussers, bronze sizes going to those making the famous hill in one minute, thirty seconds or better. Ladies are allowed two minutes for a bronze and a minute and a half for the silver . . . "TRACK!"

SKI SHOTS: Staying at Christmas Tree Inn in Bridgton, Maine, are Miss Curry and Mrs. Brinckhoff, all the way from Virginia Beach, Virginia! Other people have been there from Ohio, Minnesota, and California . . . Joe Fountain writes from Jasper National Park in the heart of the Canadian Rockies that the world's first and only co-operative ski club has been organized there. There are no fees, and every park resident who either assists in the building of club quarters or helps in clearing ski trails is eligible to membership. Outsiders are allowed to enter as guests . . .

To the Harvard skiing pals of Mr. Bryce Santry, we do not know his whereabouts at present. However, we'll announce, if possible, when this skiing acrobat will appear in a Boston nitecap . . . Johnny GIESSEN, who promotes advertising for the Boston American, is now christening in Canada's Laurentian Mountains. From his letter we discovered that more snow is needed over the hard-packed base of three feet . . . the weather there is clear and "ski tracks" fast . . .

Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 7—Casey Stengel likes California sunshine, but he would prefer to see the Bees win a first division berth in the National League.

"I am going to play Tony Cucinello at third base," declared Casey as he came into town from his home at Glendale to say hello. "Miller will be at short, Sisti at second and Joe Scarcella at first. If Scarcella's play falls off because of the tragic death of his wife, I shall play Buddy Hassett at first base."

"I'm frank in admitting my outfield is still doubtful. Max West is my only fixture there. If Scarcella wins the first-base post I may use Hassett in the outfield."

"Roth looks like a promising outfielder, and he may be in my starting lineup. He is a big, powerful fellow who can hit."

"I look for young Phil Masi to become one of the great catchers of the National League. Lopez has been a fine teacher for him."

I asked Casey if he thought the loss of Turner and MacFayden would injure the Bees pitching department.

"Not in the least," replied Casey. "I think MacFayden and Turner will have good seasons, but they will play better for their new clubs than they could for the Bees. A change of scenery always pep up a ball player."

"Neither MacFayden nor Turner believes he is a good relief pitcher, but both will succeed in this new role if given an opportunity."

"Pitchers don't like relief flinging. They like to be rated as starting pitchers as this gives them more money. Every ball club requires relief pitchers to win free hitting games, and it is an excellent spot for an experienced veteran."

LES SCARCELLA
CASEY DECLARED the Bees have played a premium on youth.

"We are all through fooling around with worn out veterans," asserted Stengel. "This is why we have given very little thought to players on other clubs on whom waivers have been asked."

"Most of this type of player is on his way out of the big leagues, and one cannot build a club with that kind of material."

"This is why I have given so much attention to youngsters like Miller, Sisti, West, Hassett and Masi. These players have years of baseball usefulness ahead of them."

"Our 1940 infield will have plenty of youth in it. Cucinello will be the only veteran. I think Cucinello will give us needed strength at third base. We have been weak at third base during the time Bill McKechnie and myself have managed the club. Cucinello is by far the best third baseman the Bees have had."

"With Cucinello, Miller, Sisti and either Scarcella or Hassett going on high, we should have an infield that will make his share of double plays."

"Last year Cucinello and Miller were the key to our double play combination. We were unfortunate in the fact Cucinello and then Miller suffered serious injuries."

"Miller tells me his injured leg is all right again. He expects to get off as a fast pace in the Spring."

STENGEL LOOKS for improved pitching next season. He believes Lou Fette will flash one of his best seasons. Some of the youngsters the Bees have been taking along carefully are also expected to come through with winning baseball.

"I would like to get two or three pitchers who can work out of turn when necessary," declared Stengel. "The trouble with veteran flingers is that they only wish to go to the mound every fourth day. They believe they are overworked when called upon to pitch at more frequent periods."

"I would like a couple of young pitchers who could go to the box every third day if needed. I believe we shall develop such a combination from the material we have on hand."

"Our young players will report at Bradenton, Fla., on February 17. We are anxious to get a line on them as soon as possible."

"I shall be checking out of Los Angeles for Kansas City in a few days. I shall visit with my people in Kansas City, and then go to Bradenton. I plan to be in Bradenton a day or so in advance of the young players."

"Any youngster who can play ball has a chance to win a berth on our club. The oldtimers can look for employment elsewhere."

CASEY TOOK TIME out in his discussion of the Bees to say a few words about the Red Sox.

"I believe that if the Red Sox can be strengthened behind the bat and in one or two other spots they will have a chance to beat out the Yankees," asserted Stengel. "Joe Cronin is a great manager, and one of the most courageous players in either league when under pressure."

"Dominic DiMaggio will help the Sox. Dominic is a fast fielder, has a good arm, and should hit around .300 in the big leagues."

"Teddy Williams should be an improved ball player this year, while the old Fox, Cramer, Vosmik, Doerr power will be on the job. I look for Jim Tabor to be improved at third base."

"It must be great to be a pitcher with that kind of batting support."

"The Sox, like the Bees, have been experimenting with some young pitchers. If a couple of the Sox rookies click, the Yanks will have cause to worry."

"I think baseball will have a successful season. If the Bees and Sox can come through in Boston, I know they will receive the wholehearted support of the fans. There isn't another town in the country that is Boston's equal in the matter of baseball interest."

"The fans have maintained their interest in the game in the face of frequent disappointments. They would jam the ball parks to capacity if the Bees and Sox were to click. Here's hoping we come through during the 1940 season."

Melody Meets Paul Junior For Third Time

Honey Melody, Charlestown, finishing training work with a few final light touches, today predicted he would throw so many punches at Paul Junior, Lewiston, tomorrow night at the Garden that he can't miss winning the N. E. lightweight championship in their 12-round engagement, feature of a Goodwin A. C. fistie festival.

WON TITLE IN MAINE
Melody looks very slick and fast and is bubbling with confidence.

Junior took the N. E. 135-pound crown from him in a bout at Portland, Me., but Melody is certain he'll regain it in a "home" ring. This will be the third Junior-Melody battle and looks like a furious engagement which will go the distance of 12 frames.

Their two previous fights went into Maine ring history as the greatest ever seen in the Pine Tree State.

In fact Matchmaker Rip has rounded up an alluring tournament, a second highlight of which is a 10-round semi-final between Georgie Martin, South End, and Jimmy Leto, crafty Hartford veteran who is ranked fourth in the national welterweight ratings.

MARTIN FAVORED
Leto made two brilliant fights in Boston, beating Ripper Ralph Zannelli and being shaded by Mike Kaplan. Martin is a local favorite.

Their bout may steal the show. Rugged Jack, Lionel Dubois, thumping stable-mate of Junior, tackles Eddie Ellis, Quincy, in an eight while a six will bring Jerry Zullo, Chebeque, and Leo DuMaline, Worcester, into battle.

Billy Tordiglione, North End, seeks his third straight as a pro against Johnny Dougwillo, Grafton, in the curtain-raising four.

Boston After Dark

By GEORGE HOLLAND

seasons . . . Some very bright stars are in the group . . . Mr. Abbott deduced that a flicker of sentiment might burn in the minds of these talented and successful actors, and he started from that point.

NEARLY HALF OF THE MONEY has been subscribed . . . Tyrone Power, Burgess Meredith and Richard Whorf, according to Mr. Abbott, have signed on the perforated line . . . He did not cite exact figures, but the supposition is that a $5000 subscription from each of the old Silver Beachers is being solicited . . . Mr. Whorf-Dickie as he is known to Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in whose support he has been appearing of late—is the motivating force in the movement.

JAMES STEWART, James Cagney, Henry Fonda and the former Mrs. Fonda (Margaret Sullivan) are the thespians alleged to be interested in the proposition . . . Cagney is a bright prospect because he summers not far from West Falmouth—just a few knots beyond the West Falmouth horizon in Martha's Vineyard . . . Whether Margaret Sullivan will invest is questionable . . . She is married to Leland Hayward, a very wealthy young man who started dabbling around theatricals as a play-broker when the depression set in, and has made a fortune as an agent since . . .

BUY SULLIVAN money or no, the Silver Beach Theater has an option on success before a curtain ever is rung up if Mr. Abbott can interest James Stewart. This is the current golden boy of a bank of female dreams . . . If Mr. Stewart's money goes to West Falmouth and if Mr. Stewart goes with his money—and will just loiter around the premises—the proposed theater is "in," or home . . . Mr. Abbott thinks that this can be arranged . . . I hope he doesn't mess with his deal . . . It would bring new interest to a beautiful section of the Cape, and through Mr. Whorf's talents as a designer, director and actor the theater would be really something.

HARVARD TEAMS BUSY ON 3 FRONTS TONIGHT

Harvard athletes will be active on three fronts tonight. The basketball team will attempt to upset Dartmouth in an Ivy League contest at Cambridge. The sextet will oppose the Junior Olympics at the Garden, and the undefeated swimming team is favored to extend its winning streak against the Boston Y. M. C. A. team.

Coach Clark Hodder of the Cantab six has been forced to shift his lineup because of injuries to Dave Eaton and Greeley Summers in practice this week. Summers received a cut which will keep him on the bench and he may not see action against the Indians on Saturday.

Hodder had planned to use Eaton at center on the first line but a leg injury will keep him inactive.

The varsity basketball game should be one of the most interesting of the season because Gus Broberg, the great Dartmouth sharpshooter, will be making his only Greater Boston appearance of the season.

Drama

of a Baltimore church, in which the wedding of Ludwig Lewisohn, 58-year-old novelist, and the former Edna Manley, above, was halted for three hours by Miss Thelma Spear and the son she claims is Lewisohn's, ends in smiles anyway as knot is tied.

But

there's no smile on faces of Thelma Spear, her attorney, Bernard Sandler, or her son, Jimmy, 5, after rite.

Bowed

in sadness here are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Pike of Brockton, parents of little seven-months-old Mary Ellen Pike, who today faced an operation in Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary for removal of her left eye... slowly being destroyed by the rare malady, glioma. The parents consented to the operation immediately when they learned it was the only chance to save Mary Ellen's life. Operation was scheduled for yesterday, but the baby developed a cold.
